NEWTON COOLS RUMOR HOOVER MAY BACK BEER

Tells Newspapermen He Asked Brewery Data for Own Use.

REFUSES TO IDENTIFY PERSON HE FAVORED

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

The rumor that President Hoover is thinking about coming out for beer with a kick in it—a rumor that has been growing more and more torrid—yesterday reached what newspapermen believed was a white heat.

In the end, Walter Newton, secretary to President Hoover, cooled it off. In doing so, however, he left the reporters with a baffling mystery—the question as to who it was that got the White House to look up figures as to the number of persons employed in breweries before and after prohibition.

This latest flurry over beer was caused by a story in an afternoon newspaper to the effect that the White House had asked the Bureau of the Census for such employment figures.

Figures Were Requested.

This story was substantially correct; the White House had in fact asked the Census Bureau for the information. Specifically, it was Secretary Newton who asked for it.

The copy reader who handled the story for the afternoon paper wrote a headline which said, "Hoover Asks for Beer Facts."

This, Secretary Newton said, was absolutely untrue. President Hoover, he emphasized, had nothing to do with the request that went out to the Census Bureau for statistics on the number of persons given employment by the breweries in the old days and the number given employment now.

Secretary Newton said that he had made the request of the Census Bureau on behalf of an individual outside of the White House. Questioned as to the identity of this individual, Mr. Newton declined to make a specific reply. He would neither affirm nor deny that it was a Government official.

He said that he had not passed on to the Bureau of Census information to the President.

Come From Many Sources.

"Any one who has served in Congress as long as I have," he said, "gets requests from many sources for many kinds of information. I always endeavor to secure the information and forward it to the correspondent.

"I can't afford to say yes or no as to whether the information was requested by a person in the Government or outside of the Government."

With the matter left in this state, speculation as to the identity of the individual who had Mr. Newton seek the employment figures from the Census Bureau was inevitable. Some thought it might be for the use of Secretary of Labor Doak, who is soon to attend the convention of the American Federation of Labor in Vancouver.

The A. F. of L. has long been clamoring for a modification of the Volstead act so as to legalize real beer and wine. The organization claims that this not only would be a blow at the bootleggers, but would give employment, direct and indirect, to 1,500,000 persons, and thus would ease the present business depression. At its Vancouver convention, the labor organization is expected to be more vehement in its demands than ever before.

Whatever President Hoover may think about the claim that a reopening of the breweries would provide work for 1,500,000 persons, there are many men close to him who think that this claim is wildly extravagant.

So it was argued yesterday, the information sought of the Census Bureau by the White House might very well have been wanted for the purpose of refuting the claim.

It will be interesting to observe whether the figures supplied the White House by the Census Bureau are cited at the American Federation of Labor convention or at the American Legion convention in Detroit

25,000 Regatta Fans See El Largarto Win

By SHIRLEY L. POVICH
(Sports Editor of The Post.)

Throttle wide open, with only the stern of its sleek mahogany hull resting in the spume and spray of a field of seven in the President's Cup race, the El Largarto, owned and driven by George Reiss, of Lake George, N. Y., knifed its way down the narrow channel on the Eastern Branch of the Potomac yesterday to win the first heat of the fifth annual race that drew maritime and land-lubbering Washington to the number of 25,000 to the river and the river banks.

Limping into the finish line, a gaping 8-inch hole in its forward underhull, came the gallant pace-setter, Hotsy Totsy, the favorite in the race, to gain second honors in the heat, more than 27 seconds behind the winner. Damaged by floating driftwood on the first turn of the fifth lap after showing the way to the field from the start, the Hotsy Totsy was leaking badly throughout the last two laps, with the river gushing up through its forward hatch in a 10-foot fountain as the thousands who lined the banks sat in an unadvertised thrill.

Nine seconds behind the Hotsy Totsy, suffering in the wake of the two leaders, came John Wanamaker's Delphine IV, piloted by Bob Purdy, to take third place and remain a contender for the ornate President's Cup, which will be decided in two more heats, to be staged today.

Par in the rear finished in order the Louisa, Californian, Miss Philadelphia and Arctic Tern, all outclassed by the speed of the three leaders and with little chance to make a winning showing today. El Largarto finished the 15-mile race in 17 minutes 33 seconds for an average of 51.14 miles per hour, two minutes off the record.

A second after crossing the finish line, the Hotsy Totsy headed back for the Navy Yard to put in for repairs, which Owner Victor Kliesrath said would enable his boat, the winner of

BAIL FOR KANE FIXED AT $15,000 BY COURT

Professor, Held in Drowning of Wife, Expects to Gain Freedom Today.

Hampton, Va., Sept. 18 (A.P.).—Elisha Kent Kane, University of Tennessee professor, charged with drowning his wife in Chesapeake Bay, tonight looked forward to release from the Hampton Jail tomorrow under bond of $15,000.

Judge C. Vernon Spratley fixed the bond today, after the Commonwealth had lost in an effort to have it set at $100,000 and a preliminary trial was called for September 23, before Police Justice J. E. Dixon, of Elizabeth City County.

The defense announced that a bond of a continuing nature would be presented to Judge Spratley tomorrow morning and Kane would not waive a preliminary hearing.

The Commonwealth argued today the coroner's verdict that Mrs. Jenny Graham Kane's drowning was a premeditated murder on the part of her husband raised suspicion in a capital case "in which there is no middle ground." Judge Spratley, however, ruled that if bond was granted to the professor it would be folly to make it prohibitive.

Meanwhile, authorities continued an investigation to determine the writer of a letter to Kane which W. C. Graham, father of the dead woman, said had caused her "great unhappiness." It was this letter, and another said to be in existence, which Coroner George K. Vanderslice said was a leading factor in his verdict that the drowning on a remote sector of Grand View Beach was murder.

The letter, written September 1 from the liner America, signed "Bet-

Stanford University, Calif., Sept. 18 (A.P.).—Dr. David Starr Jordan, 80-year-old chancellor emeritus of Stanford University, was believed near death here tonight as the result of a paralytic stroke late this afternoon.

LEGION WILL FAVOR DEFENSE INCREASES

Resolutions to Be Offered at Detroit Convention Urge Strong Force.

Detroit, Sept. 18 (A.P.).—Increases in the various branches of the armed forces of the United States are urged in resolutions prepared by the American Legion national defense committee for presentation to the legion's national convention here next week.

The committee's recommendations, made public tonight by National Commander Ralph T. O'Neil, also commend the decision of the Supreme Court in the Bland-Nolan case "in sustaining the fundamental principle of the obligations of all citizens of the United States to bear arms in the defense of the Nation in time of war."

Commendation likewise was extended to the Fish congressional committee which investigated Communistic activities in the United States.

Another recommendation called for the legion to ask "that any mission or delegation designated by the President to represent this Nation during the general conference on disarmament * * * at Geneva * * * in February, 1932, include at least four officers of the Regular Army, the senior of whom shall be a general officer of the Army, and all of said officers to be chosen by the Secretary of War."

The committee would put the legion on record as favoring an average strength of officers for the Regular Army of 12,200, the increase of 200 to be alloted to the Air Corps.

Other defense recommendations were:

12 Escape Delaware Jail After Bombing Door Lock

Two of 14 Making Break at New Castle Captured When One Is Shot Down; Guard Wounded in Plot Involving 252.

Wilmington, Del., Sept. 18 (A.P.).—In a well-timed plot, twelve prisoners escaped from the Newcastle County Workhouse, the State Penitentiary of Delaware today, after dynamiting a door lock and shooting a guard.

Fourteen prisoners actually got away, but one was shot down and captured and one was taken later. The wounded guard is Anthony Hayden, 30, of Wilmington, who was shot in the stomach. Physicians say he has a chance for recovery. The injured prisoner is Clarence Cole, a Negro. He was not seriously wounded.

Robert Manuel, Negro, the other escaped man captured, was caught tonight in a woods opposite the prison workhouse. Surrounded by several guards, he gave no resistance, and had no firearms.

He told officials the other fugitives had sent him to look for an automobile and then left him stranded.

How the dynamite came into the possession of the prisoners is under investigation. One stick was used and the only damage done to the prison property was to the door. There were 252 men involved in the affair. The warden, Elmer J. Leach, and six guards were attending court in Wilmington and the conspiratory apparently timed their break accordingly.

The 252 men were in the workshop. The four guards in the shop were backed in a far corner at the point of pistols and their keys were taken from them. While this was being done a stick of dynamite was placed in the lock and exploded, opening the way to partial freedom.

The door led to a loading platform in the rear of the shop. Twenty-nine of the convicts rushed out the door, the only barrier between them and the outside being a high woven-wire fence with a gate. An unarmed guard at the gate was brushed aside and fourteen of the men got out before the armed guards could get into action. They fired and Cole fell. In the shooting Hayden fell wounded. Prison authorities said they were told by some of the prisoners that one of the escaped men had shot him.

After the thirteen men got safely away they scattered and most of them disappeared in a southerly direction toward Baltimore. Some of them are believed to have stolen automobiles, while others are thought to have been carried off in cars furnished by outside confederates.

The board of trustees offered a reward of $500 for the capture of each man who escaped.

NAME OF WIFE ON POLICY MAY BE DEATH CLEW

Wimbley Held as $10,000 Insurance Quiz Begins; Woman Sought.

CONFUSION IN NAMES ADDS NEW MYSTERY

The question of the authenticity of the signature of Mrs. Elizabeth Wimbley on a $10,000 accident insurance policy application on her life may unravel the circumstances surrounding her drowning and that of her 3-year-old daughter, Wilma, in connection with which her husband and two of his friends are being held.

Another arrest appeared imminent last night when Detective Sergt. James F. Springmann announced his intention of taking into custody a woman with whom Harry C. Wimbley, husband of the drowned woman, was frequently seen in the past few months.

Wimbley, who has served a prison term for forgery, according to police, admits having taken out a $10,000 accident insurance policy on Mrs. Wimbley last July, and says that he named himself as beneficiary.

Insurance Probe Begun.

Meanwhile, a separate probe of the double drowning was instituted by a New York life insurance company, which underwrote the accident policy. T. Gilbert Joyce, an insurance investigator, has asked the New York office of the company, according to police, to forward here the original policy application so that a comparison may be made of the signature of Mrs. Wimbley and that on the insurance application.

Insurance policies have entered strongly into the inquiry. There is a $1,000 life insurance policy on the life of Mrs. Wimbley with the daughter, Wilma as beneficiary. Then there is another of $300 on the life of Wilma, with the mother as beneficiary. Both of these would accrue to Wimbley.

Another insurance policy entered the case last night when it was learned that Wimbley had filed claim against the Colonial Life Insurance Company for collection of $1,000 on his automobile, which he reported as stolen from Seventh and F streets northwest several weeks ago.

Auto Reported Burned.

However, Detective Sergt. Springmann says, Wimbley told Miss Daisy

Connor Plans Hop Over Sea to Tokyo

Navy Reserve Officer Will Fly From Seattle if Tests Justify.

Lieut. Connor announced his plans for the flight just before leaving New York. From Washington he will go to Wilmington, Del., where his ship is being conditioned at the Bellanca factory.

He expects to bring his plane to New York for test flights at Roosevelt Field, and if the tests prove satisfactory he will hop at once for Seattle. His copilot on the Pacific hop, he said, will be J. S. McDonnell, of Chicago.

Mary Lewis, of Opera, Bride of Oil Executive

New York, Sept. 18 (U.P.).—Mary Lewis, opera star and Robert L. Hague, a vice president of the Standard Oil Co., were secretly married several days ago and "are away on a trip," it was reported here today.

Miss Lewis was married in 1927 to Michael Bohnen, an opera singer, but they were later divorced.

Reds Using Outlaw U. S. Radio Station

Messages in New York Are Allegedly Caught and Decoded.

New York, Sept. 18 (A.P.).—The operation of an outlaw radio sending station, communicating daily with Russia in code, has been under Federal and police investigation for six months, it was learned today.

Police said the station had been located in mid-Manhattan, but was moved when authorities learned its location. It was permitted to continue operation in its new place, the code messages being caught and, it is understood, recorded.

The same high police authority which revealed the existence of this station said he had heard nothing of another outlaw station reported to be directing, under alien auspices, the operations of a narcotics ring.

3 MORE POLICEMEN QUIZZED BY AGENTS

Trio Believed to Have Been Questioned About Third Degree Reports.

Although Department of Justice officials announced Thursday after the grand jury had examined the last witness called in the second batch of "third degree" cases that its work in the investigation was completed with the exception of a special report, it was learned last night that three policemen had been summoned to the Bureau of Investigation for questioning yesterday.

The three policemen told to report immediately to Department of Justice agents are attached to the Second, Fourth and Thirteenth precincts. These precincts all came into the investigation in the thirteen so-called "iron-clad" cases of alleged brutality presented before the grand jury Wednesday and Thursday.

The men who were supposed to appear at the Bureau of Investigation on orders from Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, were Private H. H. Heflin, of the Fourth Precinct, Private J. O. Patton, Thirteenth Precinct, and Private John F. Ehlman, of the Second Precinct.

The Department of Justice supposedly had washed its hands of actual investigation into the third degree charges and was confining its activities yesterday to its special report.

This report will first be presented to Acting Attorney General Thacher, who in turn will have copies sent to the District Commissioners for their perusal. The report will cover all of the 50 or more reputed instances of police brutality and prisoner beating uncovered by the Justice agents, and will also go into the general aspects of the situation, according to advance notices.

Whether the report will be made before the grand jury returns what-

Tail-Wind Speeds Graf On Her Flight to Brazil

Friedrichshafen, Germany, Sept. 18 (U.P.).—The dirigible Graf Zeppelin, en route to Brazil, was aided by a tail wind tonight as it flew southwestward along the African coast.

The ship reported by radio to its home base that it was using only four motors, but, because of the wind, was averaging 67 miles an hour. At 10:30 p. m. (5:30 p. m. Eastern standard time) it was at 32.50 north, 9.15 west, approaching Safi on the Moroccan coast. It already had passed off Casablanca.

Clews Only Tangle Collings Mystery

Widow of Yachtsman Not at Inquest; Case Baffles District Attorney.

New York, Sept. 18 (A.P.).—In the swift space of a few hours investigators of the bizarre cruiser murder of Benjamin Collings today fruitlessly considered two suspects and new clews which led only "up against a stone wall."

Fresh information that subsequently was abandoned came at the adjournment of an inquest into the slaying of the Stamford, Conn., yachtsman, whose trussed-up body was found Wednesday on a Long Island beach. Collings' widow, who has told of a midnight invasion of their boat last week by two "pirates," was under the care of a physician at her home and did not attend the inquest.

'Old Ironsides' Aground Reaching Philadelphia

Philadelphia, Sept. 18 (A.P.).—After an hour's difficulty, "Old Ironsides," the great-great-grandaddy of American ships of the line, was docked in Philadelphia today. The ship was towed here from Wilmington, Del., by two tugs to remain until October 1.

The historic frigate was being towed up to a pier at the foot of Bainbridge street when about a hundred feet off shore her bottom scraped the muddy bottom. After some maneuvering and sounding of the river depth from small boats, the ship was gradually eased into her berth. A reception committee and bands gave her a noisy welcome.

HOOVER AND LAVAL CONFERENCE URGED

French Paper Says Meeting Is Imperative as Aid to World Conditions.

Paris, Sept. 18 (A.P.).—A suggestion that President Hoover and Premier Laval get together and discuss remedies for the international economic and financial situation was put forward tonight by L'Information, influential financial newspaper.

The suggestion was advanced just as Premier Laval and Foreign Minister Briand were preparing to go to Berlin to promote Franco-German relations. The newspaper took the attitude that a conference between President Hoover and the French premier, as leaders of two of the strongest and most prosperous nations, was imperative.

It had been reliably informed, it said, that Mr. Hoover, after discussing the idea of such a meeting with Secretary Stimson and Ambassador Edge, was disposed to favor it.

The two French statesmen's conversations with Chancellor Bruening and Foreign Minister Curtius, of Germany, it was authoritatively explained, will be essentially nonpolitical, with France suggesting concrete projects for cooperation which are designed to put Germany economically on her feet.

This attitude was based on the idea, said to be growing in Europe, that political problems, as such, must be swept aside for the moment, and everybody should concentrate on putting order into the so-called capitalistic system for the benefit of all. The Hoover-Laval conference suggestion was understood to be an outgrowth of this conviction.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover was said last night not to have considered discussing the world situation in a meeting with Premier Laval of France.

The first information of such a suggestion to reach the President, it was added at the White House, came through news dispatches from Paris.

LINDBERGHS LEAVE ON HOP TO NANKING

Couple Will Continue Flight to Europe From China, Colonel Asserts.

Fukuoka, Japan, (Saturday) Sept. 19 (A.P.).—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh hopped off at 8:35 a. m. today (6:53 p. m. Friday E. S. T.) on a flight of nearly 800 miles across the Yellow Sea to Nanking, China. The colonel estimated the flight would require about seven hours. He said if unfavorable weather was encountered, he and Mrs. Lindbergh would return to Fukuoka.

The departure marked the end of their visit to Japan. The famous couple started their aerial vacation at New York July 29, flew by easy stages over Canada to Alaska, over the Bering Sea and down the Kurile Island chain to Japan. They arrived in Tokyo August 26, and since have taken several sight-seeing trips in the land of the rising sun.

Beyond Nanking, Capital of China, their route was uncertain and Col. Lindbergh has been emphatic in saying he would not definitely determine upon an itinerary until he conferred with Chinese officials.

He said, however, that he and his

Hudson Given Divorce; To Rewed 'Ma' Kennedy

Las Vegas, Nev., Sept. 18 (A.P.).—Guy Edward Hudson was granted a divorce here this afternoon from Mrs. L. Margaret Newton-Hudson, and less than a half hour later obtained a license to remarry Mrs. Minnie "Ma" Kennedy.

Hudson went through a marriage ceremony with Mrs. Kennedy, mother of Aimee McPherson-Hutton, Los Angeles evangelist, a few months ago in Long View, Wash. After a brief honeymoon Mrs. Kennedy obtained an annulment of the marriage, saying she took the action after learning of Mrs. Newton-Hudson.

New Hampshire Judge Ends Life After Wild Auto Ride

Lancaster, N. H., Sept. 18 (A.P.).—Judge Eri C. Oakes, of the New Hampshire Superior Court, committed suicide today a few hours after the consequences of a wild automobile ride had led him to resign from the bench. He was 42 years old.

In the quiet of his family home Judge Oakes said farewell to his daughter as she left for school, penned two notes and telephoned a friend to visit him. The friend was Dr. William H. Leith, acting for the day as a medical referee.

Dr. Leith went to the Oakes home as a friend, but once inside he assumed the duties of medical referee for he found the judge dead in bed. He had been shot through the head and a pistol lay by his side.

Shaken by the tragedy, Dr. Leith pronounced his life-long associate a suicide. On a dresser near the bed the two notes lay. One was to Oakes' daughter, Mabel, 14 years old. In the other, to Dr. Leith, he told that his contemplated act was inevitable, although he regretted it was necessary. He asked as a parting request, Dr. Leith care for Mabel.

The shooting took place at about the time Gov. John G. Winant was writing to Oakes to accept his resignation and tell him he respected him for his desire to show special privilege to no man. Oakes had mailed the resignation last night at the close of a day which had brought into public view the developments of the automobile ride.

Last Sunday night an automobile driven by the judge struck a pole in Troops Mobilized in Korea as Reinforcements for Present Occupants of Capital.

Changchun, China (Saturday), Sept. 19 (U.P.).—The Japanese consulate here was destroyed by fire today. Cause of the blaze was not known.

(United Press.)

Japanese soldiers today were reported to be in control of Mukden, the capital of Manchuria, after 18 hours of battling with Chinese forces in the suburbs and nearby military camps.

Dispatches direct from Mukden said the Japanese forced their way into the walled city shortly before dawn and that the Japanese government had ordered reinforcements to proceed to the Manchurian capital at once.

Mukden was under control of Japanese troops within half an hour after they entered the city, disarming the Chinese.

Mobilization orders for all Japanese troops in Korea and Manchuria were issued at headquarters of the Korean army at Seoul, Korea.

Cut Telegraph Wires.

Reports from Changchun, China, said Japanese soldiers were cutting telephone and telegraph wires to prevent Chinese from calling reinforcements to Mukden.

Japanese news agency dispatches declared that the Mukden soldiers themselves began the battle.

From Peiping, however, came a report quoting Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang, ruler of Manchuria, as saying that Japanese military "provoked" the fighting so that they would have an excuse for occupying Manchuria.

The Chinese have often charged Japan with planning to occupy Manchuria because the region would provide her with much-needed natural resources and also would open a new colony for the overcrowded Japanese population.

Enter Walled City.

Mukden, Manchuria, Saturday, Sept. 19 (U.P.).—Japanese troops fought their way into the walled city of Mukden early today after overcoming Chinese troops at nearby military camps.

There was a series of street clashes as the Japanese soldiers moved into the main part of Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang's capital at 4 a. m., the roar of guns in the suburbs awakening the populace.

The occupation of the walled city was complete at 4:30. The Japanese disarmed the Chinese police and announced a "guarantee of peace."

The capital is surrounded by a well-built wall. Another section of the city, in which the administration buildings are located, also is walled in.

Fighting Causes Alarm.

Previously the population of Mukden had been alarmed by extensive fighting between Japanese and Chinese forces at the military camps outside the capital.

The chief activity was at the Peitaying camp, about 3 miles away. There was a bombardment yesterday and intermittent rifle and machine-gun fire continued last night and until early this morning, when the Japanese forces entered the walled city just before dawn.

The fighting caused panic in the most seriously affected parts of the capital. Mukden has a population of about 200,000.

The fighting arose at a moment of critically strained relations between Japan, which built and controls the Southern Manchurian Railway, and

YOUNG GROUP PLANS RELIEF FUND DRIVE

Chairman and Gifford Do Not Foresee Any Need for Federal Aid.

(Associated Press.)

Walter S. Gifford, national relief director, and Owen D. Young, chairman of his committee to mobilize relief funds, expressed confidence yesterday that local communities would be able to take care of their own unemployed next winter, but neither closed the door to Federal appropriations.

Gifford opened the first meeting of Mr. Young's committee with a declaration of confidence that existing agencies in local communities could handle the situation, but made no reference to Federal funds.

After the meeting, Mr. Young, in a press conference, expressed a belief that local funds would be adequate, but when asked about Federal appropriations, answered frankly he did not know what would be required.

Young Appears Nervous.

Sitting on the edge of a desk, with a score of newspaper correspondents firing questions at him, Mr. Young nervously twiddled an unlighted cigar in his fingers and sometimes consulted an associate before responding.

Asked if his committee would be able to meet the needs of the unemployed, he replied:

"I don't want to prophesy, because I don't know. Our first job is to go at the problem with all the energy we can, and with a confident belief we will meet it. I think we will."

"You don't intend to leave any doubt about your ability to take care of the situation, do you?" he was asked.

None to Suffer.

"No, not any doubt about the effectiveness of public and private funds locally applied."

"Do you think Federal funds will be necessary?"

"I don't think we are going to let anybody suffer in the United States. What that requires, I don't know."

Young's committee, composed of nearly a score of prominent business men, was called together to plan the national appeal for local funds from October 19 to November 25. Its chief function, Young said, will be to conduct a national publicity campaign for funds, by using agencies not available to local communities.

Functions Explained.

At the opening of the meeting Gifford explained the functions of President Hoover's relief organization.

"Our aim," he said, "is to be of widest service to communities in their task of meeting the burden placed upon them by unemployment, whatever that burden may be.

"Last winter, public and private agencies in existence in communities throughout the country met the situation, on the whole, so that there was a minimum of suffering.

"They no doubt will do so again this winter. There will not be the drought problem that there was a year ago."

Reports Sought On Jobless Here

Trade Groups Will Make Survey at Request of Croxton.

Managing executives of trade associations with headquarters in Washington yesterday were called on to report what they are going for unemployment relief in a questionnaire sent out by Washington Trade Association executives.

The survey will be made at the request of Fred C. Croxton, of the President's organization on unemployment relief, who addressed a meeting of the executives Thursday. A summary of the report will be turned over to the President's committee when completed.

Wilson Compton, of the National Lumber Manufacturers Association, is chairman of the executives' emergency employment committee, which is sending out the questionnaires. He is assisted by Charles J. Brand, of the National Fertilizer Association, and E. J. Harding, of the Associated General Contractors of America.

Hundreds of Millions In Loans Urged for Aid

(Associated Press.)

Direct governmental loans of "several hundred million dollars" to the needy were proposed by Representative Campbell, of Pennsylvania, to alleviate distress during the coming winter.

Mr. Campbell, a Republican, suggested that the Federal Government or the States issue long term bonds for the loans, which he said should be made for ten years without interest. He said at least 75 per cent of the loans would be repaid. They should be made, he said, through relief organizations according to the actual need of applicants.

Shoals Lease Seen For Chemical Firm

(Associated Press.)

Col. Joseph I. McMullen said yesterday that the recently created Federal State Muscle Shoals Commission was negotiating with three large chemical companies which have recently become interested in leasing the Government's war-time power and nitrate plants on the Tennessee River.

McMullen, a member of the commission, said these concerns had not figured in previous discussions and were not among the seven firms from which proposals were received here September 1. He added that the commission hopes to have "something definite to work on" when it meets October 1 in Birmingham.

He predicted that the commission would have its recommendation for the leasing of the plants in President Hoover's hands a full month before Congress meets in December, at the rate negotiations were progressing. After receiving the commission's report the President is expected to recommend to Congress legislation designed to settle the ten-year-old problem of what to do with Muscle Shoals.

McMullen indicated the commission would recommend that the plants be leased to a chemical concern rather than a power company. The commission, he said, was primarily interested in having the plants operated for production of cheap fertilizer to aid agriculture.

WORK RELIEF URGED TO ASSIST JOBLESS

Administrative Assistant to President Says Method Excels Direct Gifts.

Utilization of work relief instead of direct aid, to the extent possible, was advocated in meeting needs brought by the unemployment situation by George Hastings, administrative assistant to the President, as principal speaker at the first fall meeting of the Community Chest publicity council, yesterday at the Y. W. C. A. Mr. Hastings explained that he was speaking personally and not as a representative of the White House. Ernest S. Johnston, chairman of the council, presided.

Mr. Hastings held that the outstanding lesson of last winter was the importance of work relief properly planned and handled. He described it as a double remedy, since it helped the man and saved his self-respect. The speaker said the average needy person prefers work to charity and that this automatically determines whether the candidate for aid is willing to do his part toward his own rehabilitation.

"The current situation affects not only a man's stomach but his morale," he said, "and the man in need requires help to maintain his standards of character. He is trying to get on his feet again after a hard wallop. After we have fed him we need, through our character building organizations, to help him through his own character and morale to work out his own salvation."

Mr. Hastings stressed the need for trained social workers. Walter S. Ufford, general secretary of the Associated Charities, told of the necessity for additional public relief work in Washington, stating that public funds provide only about 37 per cent of the relief here as compared with a general average of 77 per cent in other cities.

Ralph H. Campbell, executive secretary of the Columbia Polytechnic Institute for the Blind, said that in figures published on unemployment no mention was made of the normal unemployment situation even in prosperous times, and said he thought there should be an explanation that the entire unemployment situation is not due to present conditions, but is merely greater because of those conditions.

Dr. Earl S. Bellman, professor of sociology at the University of Maryland; Paul L. Benjamin, Mrs. Ernest R. Grant and others also spoke.

Shouse Hits Plea To Postmasters

Democratic Chairman Says That Appeal Is Made to Save Hoover.

(Associated Press).

Postmaster General Brown's reminder to postmasters outside the civil service that the law did not prevent them from engaging in political activities was interpreted yesterday by Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, as an effort to "save the Hoover political scalp."

In a statement issued from Democratic national headquarters, Chairman Shouse had this to say about Brown's speech, made Thursday night at Omaha before the National Association of Postmasters.

"First, it shows the pitiful plight in which the Hoover administration finds itself. The popular uprising against it is such that in its desperate attempt to prevent disastrous defeat next year its chief political spokesman instructs the postmasters of the country to go to work to try to save the political life of President Hoover. Second, it is a stark and frank though unpleasing exhibition of the attitude of the present administration toward governmental officials."

SCORES OF BRIEFS FIGHT RAIL CLAIMS

(Associated Press.)

The railroads yesterday told the Interstate Commerce Commission that they had established a right to a rate increase, but several States and many private organizations disputed the assertion.

Approximately three score of briefs were filed with the commission in preparation for oral arguments starting Monday in the rate case. The railroads are asking the right to apply a uniform 15 per cent increase on all products except coal for which there would be a special application of the raise.

The principal railroads, through a committee of eighteen, told the commission they unquestionably had made a case and that the commission "should recognize the right and grant the relief sought."

The railroad commissions of several Western States countered with charges that the railroads had not been economically and efficiently managed during recent years.

Roads Stick to Their Story.

The railroad brief stuck to the contention made at hearings here and throughout the country that there should be no exceptions from the proposed increase. Short line railroads, backing the larger carriers two days ago, indicated they were willing that agriculture be exempted.

"The need for the proposed increase is due," said the railroad brief, "to improvement of a service that is availed of universally and which by its devotion to public use must respond universally to the demands which are made upon it, as well as to demands of those shippers who might be able to dispense with it and to the demands of those shippers to whom it is indispensable."

Roads Make Heavy Demands.

The roads pointed out they had endeavored to help during the business depression by keeping as many men at work as possible, though during the last year curtailment had been necessary.

The Minnesota Railroad and Warehouse Commission urged that the case be dismissed on the ground that any increase would be economically unsound and that "the railroads have not been and are not now economically and sufficiently managed."

The California Railroad Commission contended the carriers had failed to prove their revenues would be enhanced by an increase and that the shipping public had demonstrated it would result in a further loss in tonnage and revenue to the carriers.

The South Dakota Commission denied the roads were faced by an emergency requiring a percentage increase and said the carriers had failed to inform the public that a continuance of efficient and adequate service was "threatened by impairment."

H. L. Bode, assistant attorney generaly of South Dakota, acting for the State and a group of civic and official organizations, charged that many operating practices of the carriers "do not represent conservative or economical management."

Urge Denial of Increase.

Ralph W. Davis, attorney general of New Hampshire, and Claude H. Swain, for the Concord Chamber of Commerce, urged denial of the increase, but said if one were found necessary the commission should prescribe the method least harmful to the country as a whole.

The Wyoming Public Service Commission asserted the carriers had not "properly attempted to meet other competitive means of transportation."

J. H. Henderson, commerce counsel of Iowa, said all business houses were suffering from a world-wide depression, and the "carriers must go along with industry, agriculture and mines."

The State of Idaho, in a brief, declared rates on agricultural commodities produced in the State already were greater than the traffic would bear.

"An increase in railroad rates can only mean extending the haul within which trucks may operate with a margin of profit," it said.

INSURANCE POLICY HELD DEATH CLEW

Wimbley Held as $10,000 Policy Quiz Begins; Woman Sought.

E. Wilson, who lives at the Y. W. C. A. annex at 311 C street northwest, that the automobile had been burned while on a visit to Oklahoma early this summer.

This automobile was purchased on a $645 allowance on a trade-in automobile, plus $400 cash. There had been a $390 collateral loan on the car, which has since been liquidated, according to police. The face value of the automobile insurance policy is $1,000.

When Wimbley returned from the scene of the double drowning in the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal near Chain Bridge he is said to have told Miss Wilson, according to police: "My wife and baby have just drowned. That is, my wife from Baltimore."

Said He Mailed Application.

Wimbley told police that he has a divorced wife and two children in Baltimore. The girl, Wilma, was a daughter of Mrs. Wimbley by an earlier marriage.

In verbal statements to police, Wimbley, according to Detective Sergt. Springmann, said that until Tuesday he had not seen Mrs. Wimbley since December 1. Asked by detectives how she signed the accident policy in July, he replied that he had mailed it to her and she had filled it out and then returned it to him.

When Detective Sergts. Springmann and Floyd Truscott sought to question him regarding his reputed recent marriage, he replied that upon advice of his attorney, George N. Dale, he would answer no further questions.

Others who are being held with Wimbley are John Crowder, 24 years old, who accompanied the Wimbleys on the fishing trip, and William Jungren, 21 years old, of 305 C street northwest. Miss Wilson said she knew both Crowder and Jungren as "Clark."

Woman Confronts Crowder.

The detective interviewed Crowder at the Third Precinct last night and asked him whether he had ever been known as "Clark." He is reported to have replied: "No." They then confronted him with Miss Wilson, and she then said that he was the person to whom she had been introduced as a Mr. Clark.

Mrs. Wimbley received $5,000 on an insurance policy of her first husband, William Traylor, who was drowned at Sparrow's Point, Md., three years ago. Wimbley is said to have admitted spending some of this money, according to police. Most of the money was converted into bonds by Mrs. Wimbley, the police said, and of this amount about $1,000 remains.

Another mystifying angle to the case appeared last night when P. H. Tench, father of Mrs. Wimbley, sent a telegram to "Harry Jungren," advising him to "Hold the bodies until I arrive." So far no one of that name has entered the case.

Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald performed autopsies on the bodies of Mrs. Wimbley and her daughter, and said death was due to drowning. Except for a bruise near the girl's eye, which may have been caused by a grappling hook, there were no external evidence of violence. The contents of the stomach of each of them will be analyzed.

Says Daughter Planned Trip.

Mr. Tench told police that he received a post card from Washington on Thursday in which his daughter said she expected to leave soon for Ohio. The address on the post card was 305 C street northwest, but Mrs. Wimbley and her daughter did not stay at that address. They spent Wednesday night in a rooming house at 1208½ N street northwest.

The Wimbleys were married about a year ago in Atlanta, according to her father.

There were indications last night that the homicide squad would attempt to have Maryland authorities inquire into the drowning of William Traylor, Mrs. Wimbley's first husband, at Sparrow's Point, Md., about three years ago.

Detective Sergt. Dennis J. Murphy went to Dendron, Va., yesterday to interview Mr. Tench, father of Mrs. Wimbley, where she had spent several weeks this summer. The detective sergeant went there to obtain correspondence which held Mrs. Wimbley's signature, as well as to learn of the marital relations between the couple.

Wimbley has a long police record, according to Detective Sergt. Springmann, but the detectives refused to make it public. His real name is believed to be John G. Dickerson, but Springmann says he has also used the names of Harry C. Dickerson, John T. Dickerson, Harry C. Dickison, as well as Wimbley.

Man With Dog Sought.

Detective Sergts. Murphy and Truscott uncovered the insurance angle of the case through papers seized from Wimbley's effects. Other homicide detectives are trying to determine whether there were any other policies bought on the life of Mrs. Wimbley.

Police are seeking a colored man with a bird dog, the barking of which, Wimbley says, attracted him from the canal where his wife and daughter were in the canoe in the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal above Chain Bridge. Wimbley, according to police, said he was attracted by the barking dog and moved about 100 feet from the canal, where he saw the canoe overturn.

Police are uncertain whether he could have commanded a view of the canal from the point where he said he stood. Crowder, according to his story, was about 40 feet from the canal but, according to Detective Sergt. Springmann, he neither saw nor heard the canoe overturn and the mother and child pitch into the water.

The men dove for the bodies without success. Wimbley saw a fishing pole protruding from the water and pulled it up and his wife's hand was clutching the end of it, he said.

Wimbley went to Dendron, Va., on Tuesday to bring his wife to Washington to celebrate her twenty-sixth birthday. While on the birthday party on the canal, the canoe overturned, he said, and the couple was drowned.

Pacific Fliers Planning To Take to Air Again

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 18 (A.P.).—Don Moyle and C. A. Allen, who were forced down on an uninhabited island in Bering Sea on their projected nonstop flight from Japan to Seattle, planned to take to the air again today for a 600-mile flight to Nome, Alaska.

Their courses will take them across Bering Sea to Nome from Miano Pilgina, Siberian coast village, southwest of Cape Navarin, where they were landed by the Soviet vessel that rescued them from the bleak island. The flight was expected to take about six hours. Radio reports from the village said the weather was clearing.

FOUR MORE REBELS IN CHILE TO BE SHOT

Total of Ten Now Doomed; Seven Are Sentenced to Prison for Life.

Santiago, Chile, Sept. 18 (A.P.).—Four members of the crew of the cruiser O'Higgins who participated in the recent mutiny of Coquimbo were sentenced to death before a firing squad by a court-martial today at La Serena.

This makes a total of ten sailors and petty officers involved in the mutiny who face death. Six of the chief leaders of the revolt, who were members of the crew of the flagship La Torre, were sentenced yesterday.

In addition to condemning four men to be shot, the La Serena court-martial sentenced seven men to prison for life and pronounced lesser sentences on seventeen others.

The men condemned to die followed the lead of their comrades of the La Torre by appealing to Gen. Carlos Vergara, minister of war, for clemency.

Chile Celebrates Independence.

Santiago, Chile, Sept. 18 (U.P.).—The 121st anniversary of Chilean independence was celebrated today. The program here consisted of a te deum at the cathedral. A banquet at La Moneda Palace attended by the diplomatic corps and other officials, a gala performance at the Municipal Theater, and numerous popular festivals.

Mexican Rail Strike Called.

Mazatlan, Sinaloa, Mexico, Sept. 18 (U.P.).—A strike of all employes of the Southern Pacific Railroad of Mexico was called for September 27 today as a protest against the company's determination to cut wages 10 per cent.

Fess Seeking Plan To Release Money

Senator Wants Confidence Restored to Banks in Granting Loans.

(Associated Press.)

A study of ways to restore any lack of confidence in banking circles so that money may be more readily released for business was advocated yesterday by Senator Fess (Republican), Ohio. The senator also suggested a study of legislation to prevent depositors from withdrawing all their money from a bank in times of emergency.

He said he felt it was consistent with sound banking policy to determine whether the Federal Reserve System "through proper discounting" might take steps to remove the fright which is preventing many banks from making sound loans."

Senator Fess said the extraordinary amount of capital which some institutions were keeping in their vaults worked a hardship both on the banks and on industry.

$2,500,000 Robbery Suspect Mute in Court

Lincoln, Nebr., Sept. 18 (A.P.).—August (Gus) Winkler, charged with aiding in the robbery of the Lincoln National Bank & Trust Co. of $2,500,000 a year ago, stood mute when arraigned here today in municipal court.

His bond was set at $100,000, which he did not furnish. Preliminary hearing on the charge was scheduled for October 9. Winkler was returned to Lincoln Wednesday from St. Joseph, Mich., where he was arrested after being injured in an automobile accident.

3 MORE POLICEMEN DRAWN INTO PROBE

ever indictments it may have on Wednesday is poblematical.

The grand jury has completed its work in "prosecution cases"—those in which indictments could reasonably be expected against offending policemen. At the end of this phase of the inquiry it suspended operations and United States Attorney Leo A. Rover said that any indictments the jury may make would be returned Wednesday, along with routine indictments.

Only the 13 cases regarded as conclusive were given to the jury Thursday out of the 50 or more reported to the Department of Justice. About fifteen policemen, including several headquarters detectives, are liable to indictment in this second batch of cases.

Should these men be indicted the number of policemen facing charges of assault in connection with "strong arm" practices will be boosted to a score. Five First Precinct policemen are already under $1,000 bonds in connection with the charges of James Henry Harker and other persons that they were beaten while prisoners at that station house.

Until Thursday, when the grand jury ceased its work on "prosecution cases" indications were that the body would return, with the indictments, a report dealing with the general aspects of the "third degree system" in Washington, and might even call some officials of the Police Department before it before making out the report.

After hearing the last of the witnesses in the prosecution cases, however, there were strong indications that the jury would make no special report but would leave it up to the Department of Justice to fix responsibility for the police situation in its voluminous report to Mr. Thacher and the District Commissioners.

REED URGES LARGER INHERITANCE TAXES

Pennsylvania Senator Sees Increase as Solution of Federal Problem.

(United Press.)

Heavy inheritance taxes would go far toward solving the problems of present-day Government and economics in this country, in the opinion of Senator David A. Reed (Republican), of Pennsylvania.

Such taxes, taking most of the estates of rich men, would lighten present tax burdens without discouraging private initiative, Senator Reed said yesterday in an interview.

"I favor very heavy inheritance taxes, making provision, of course, for a living for widows and dependents who are unable to make their accustomed livings otherwise," he said.

"A man should not be allowed to leave his son and other relatives complete immunity from work.

"Such a tax, taking most of the estates of rich men, would lighten the present heavy taxes on earnings which are imposed by the income tax law.

"A heavy inheritance tax will not discourage private initiative, because a man would have the use and spending of his earnings throughout his lifetime. It would tend to encourage spending and discourage excessive hoarding of wealth in nonproductive places.

"Another thing is that under the present Federal inheritance tax, an estate of $100,000 or more pays the same tax if it is divided among ten heirs as it does if a single heir gets it. The tax should be scaled according to the size of the amount received by the heir, not as at present according to the total amount left by the testator."

Walsh Favors Increase In Tax on Large Incomes

(Associated Press.)

Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, yesterday said he favored tax revision to place additional levies on large incomes.

Senator Walsh, who returned to Washington yesterday from his home, said that if this failed to balance the budget additional taxes might be necessary.

Senator Walsh said his views on taxation coincided with those expressed by Representative Byrns (Democrat), Tennessee.

"The sentiment in my section is almost unanimously against a general sales tax," Walsh said.

The Montanan expressed belief that Gov. Roosevelt of New York would be the next Democratic Presidential nominee and that sentiment for the New York Governor was strong in the West.

90 State School Girls Poisoned, Governor Says

Oklahoma City, Sept. 18 (U.P.).—Gov. W. H. Murray announced late today that 90 inmates of the State Industrial School for Girls at Tecumseh had been poisoned. He said 25 of the girls still were ill, but were expected to recover.

The governor named Dr. G. N. Bilby, State health commissioner, to investigate the case. Gov. Murray was informed by investigators that it was rumored some one had dropped arsenic in food while it was being cooked.

Jury Holds Guilty Policeman-Accuser

Convicted Gun-Carrier Had Charged He Was Given Third Degree.

A police court jury yesterday found Fred L. Gonzales, colored, of Euclid street, near Seventh street northwest, who accused Policeman Earl Baker, of the Second Precinct, and another unidentified officer of "third degree methods" in extorting a confession from him, guilty of carrying concealed weapons.

Judge Ralph Given will pass sentence on Gonzales today. His third degree charges, made in a previous trial, led to an examination by United States Attorney Leo A. Rover and Department of Justice agents. The jury was unable to agree in the earlier trial.

According to the testimony, eight colored men attempted to "gang" Policeman Baker while he stood in front of 2130 Eighth street northwest August 27. The officer drew his service revolver and grabbed Gonzales. As he started to walk the man to the station a pistol dropped from Gonzales' pockets, Baker said.

Cidwell Faces Quiz In Morrow's Death

Policeman, Who Allegedly Withheld Information, to Go Before Board.

Policeman A. B. Cidwell, of the Traffic Bureau, who is said to possess information concerning the case of Policeman Raymond Morrow, whose body was found under the Sixteenth street bridge last week, will be recommended to appear before the Police Trial Board next Wednesday, Inspector E. W. Brown, assistant superintendent of police, announced yesterday.

According to a report made by Capt. Edward J. Kelly, Cidwell was with Miss Matha Ifabey last Saturday night after she was with Morrow and the last person to see him alive. Inspector Brown said he would charge Cidwell with withholding this information from his superior officers.

Cidwell is at the present time on leave, but is being sought for questioning.

'Oh, to Be in England!!' Where All Are Unhappy

By JOHN J. DALY

OF a sudden, almost everybody in England seems dissatisfied.

Trouble began with the navy, spread to the Army and the Marine Corps, went from there to the ranks of school teachers and members of the various civil services, and has now taken hold of the bankers. When a banker gets excited the time has come, as the walrus said, to think of many things—especially of a way out.

Worried over a probable drop in the pound sterling, the board of governors of the Bank of England warned the coalition government against holding an election within the next two years—thus taking the pound out of politics. What has happened is not a drop in the bucket to what will happen if there is a drop in the pound.

The House of Commons is exceedingly dissatisfied with the House of Lords, and both branches of Parliament are chagrined over the antics of the Old Lady of Threadneedle Street.

* * * *

RT. HON. AUSTIN CHAMBERLIN, First Lord of the Admiralty, is mortified with the way the Second and Third Lords of the Admiralty wear their cocked hats—just a little bit too cocky.

Capt. Brainsfeather, commander of H. M. S. Rumaround, is disappointed, to say the least, with all his petty officers, and the petty officers, in turn, are extremely put out with the way able-bodied seaman are behaving, and limeys refusing to chew navy cut plug as old sea-salts before them had done from time immemorial.

* * * *

THE bobbies of London, led by the Chief of Bobbies, are vexed with traffic arrangements for the parades of demonstrating school teachers, marching in protest against the superintendent of schools—and the school children are keen for the abolition of the Three Rs.

Laborites grumble against Ramsay MacDonald, their old leader, for the way he plays into the hands of the Conservatives—and the Conservatives, led by a disgruntled ultra-Conservative, feel that more rigid economy will have to be practiced if England is to continue being England.

It used to be that Britannia ruled not only the waves but swayed all the hearts in the United Kingdom—when the kingdom was united. In those days the only real thorn, exemplified by the black-thorn stick, in the side of Great Britain, was Ireland. Now that this century-old problem has been solved, and all is quiet along the coast of Cobh, poor old John Bull is getting kicked around in his own back yard—by everybody—from the stable boys up.

* * * *

NOBODY seems to want to do anything to help. All hands are singing the street song:

Call on the Army and the Navy,
Call on the rank and file;
Call on the brave old Territorials,
They'll face the danger with a smile;
Call on the boys of the Old Brigade
To keep old England free—
Call on your mothers,
Your sisters and your brothers;
But please don't call on me.

Even Mahatma Gandhi, a gusset artist in the realm, is dejected, expressing keen disappointment over the days and nights spent in talk at the round table conference.

Something, of course, will have to be done about it. The pound must not be allowed to drop. The Bank of England must remain the Gibraltar of the financial world. The British navy must retain command of the seas. India must not be permitted to cut loose. Other dangerous questions are pressing and must be solved.

But the greatest Must of all that confronts Ramsay MacDonald is this: Something Must be done.

ty," and with the return address "E. H. D.," 150 Riverside Drive, New York," on the back, bore the salutation, "Dear Sashy," and was looked to by the coroner to provide a motive for homicide. He said he believed its author was named Betty Dodd, but officers, apparently, had not been able to confirm this. The New York address given was a hotel, where "Betty Dodd" was unknown.

Dr. Evan O'Neill Kane, 71-year-old father of the accused professor, who came here by airplane to offer his assistance, has expressed the opinion that the letter would not be of value in any court. On the other hand, Mr. Graham said the verdict was "not surprising" to Mrs. Kane's family, as they had known about the letter, and they intended to cooperate fully with the Commonwealth.

WOMAN INDORSED FOR TARIFF BOARD

Republican Group Requests President to Appoint Miss Obenauer.

A concerted movement of women in the Republican party to obtain the appointment of a woman to one of the vacancies on the United States Tariff Commission has been inaugurated by a letter sent to the White House by the Woman's National Republican Club, of New York, asking that Miss Marie Obenauer be appointed.

In her letter to President Hoover Mrs. Arthur L. Livermore, president of the club, states that Miss Obenauer has the support of the women belonging to the club and that they asked for this appointment when there was a vacancy on the board a year ago.

Letters of indorsement of the appointment of Miss Obenauer have also been sent to the White House from Miss Ida Tarbell, tariff expert; Clark Howell, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, Democrats, and representative Republicans, including Thomas F. Adams, head of the economics department of Yale University; Thomas D. Campbell, farm expert; Charles P. Neill, of the Industrial Council of the Southern Railway; Henry Wild, dean of Williams College, and Mrs. John S. Sherman, former president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Personal visits asking for the appointment of Miss Obenauer have been made at the White House by Representative Florence Pragg Kahn, of California; Representative Ruth Pratt, of New York; Miss Maude Wetmore and Mrs. Daniel Guggenheim.

The women make it clear that they do not expect one of their number to be made chairman of the commissioner to replace Henry P. Fletcher but simply to fill one of the vacancies. They expect President Hoover to move the present vice chairman, Thomas Walker Page, of Virginia, up to the position of chairman.

Miss Obenauer is a graduate of Michigan University. She was the first chief of the woman's division of the Department of Labor which grew into the present Woman's Bureau. For many years Miss Obenauer has been economic consultant for women's groups and in close touch with the woman thought along economic lines. At present she is the director of the Industrial Survey and Research Service at 1800 E street northwest.

When Washington Was Younger—No. 49

THIS picture was taken on September 19, 1896, exactly 36 years ago today, at the Sixth street entrance of the Baltimore and Potomac Railroad station. The occasion was the arrival of Presidential Candidate William Jennings Bryan in the "enemy's country," as it was termed by him. Bryan is seated to the right in the rear seat of the carriage. Next to him on the back seat is National Committeeman Lawrence Gardner and on the front, riding backwards, are J. Fred Kelly, chairman of the reception committee, and James L. Norris (back turned.)

After a reception and dinner at the Metropolitan Hotel, Mr. Bryan, accompanied by the Democratic Central Committee and the various Democratic organizations of District, proceeded to the Base Ball Park, then at North Capitol, F and G streets northeast, (site of present City Post Office), where a great audience of the citizens of the National Capital greeted him. He delivered one of his eloquent ovations on the issues of the campaign, during which a thunderstorm occured, the rain coming down in torrents and soaking the audience and thoroughly drenching the candidate, who returned at the close of his address to the hotel, changed his clothes and was then taken by a reception committee from Baltimore to that city.

He addressed a meeting of the Democrats of the Monumental City, at the close of which he returned to Washington, and remained here over Sunday.

BOARD DEADLOCKED ON SALE OF VESSELS

(United Press.)

The Shipping Board was deadlocked yesterday over disposal of the United States Lines when advocates of the Chapman-Dollar-Dawson bid were unable to muster a sufficient majority to approve terms of sale.

Following a special meeting, board commissioners indicated that the whole question of disposal of the ships, which has been bitterly contested by rival financial interests, would again be thrown wide open. Representatives of the Roosevelt-International-Mercantile Marine Co., high bidders for the lines; the Chapman-Dollar-Dawson combine, and Joseph Sheedy, minority stockholders in the present U. S. Lines Co., will meet here Monday with board commissioners.

Officials said that any new offers for the Government's equity in the lines, amounting to over $11,000,000, will be considered at that time.

The failure of the board to agree to terms of sale to the Chapman interests came as a surprise to shipping officials, who had believed that the sale would be concluded without further delay. The board several weeks ago authorized its legal department to negotiate a contract, and formal approval was considered a matter of routine. Last week reports that the board was unable to reach a satisfactory agreement were emphatically denied.

The Chapman-Dollar-Dawson bid was reported at $3,170,900.

MANCHURIA AREA CAPTURED BY JAPANESE AFTER BATTLE

Charged as Spy.

The difficulty grew out of the execution of Capt. Shintaro Nakamura, a Japanese officer, in August, on charges of being a spy. The Japanese military authorities contended that Nakamura had a permit to make maps and the military department indirectly made threats of action against China. The foreign office, under Baron Shidehara, attempted to smooth over the incident by securing reparation from China, but the tense feeling continued.

Japanese news sources claimed that the Mukden troops, which are directly responsible to the youthful Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang as overlord of Manchuria and apparently an ally of the Chinese National government, had taken advantage of the tension to wreck the railroad and attack the Japanese garrison. There was an exchange of bombardments between the two forces, the Nippon Dempo correspondent said, and then the Japanese troops got the upper hand temporarily.

Both Nations Have Influence.

The fact that Manchuria, comparatively rich in mineral and other resources and having a moderate climate, lies to the north of China, connected only by a narrow link, and adjoins Japan's province of Korea, has opened it to the influence of both nations. The influence of Soviet Russia also has been felt strongly, since Manchuria borders Siberia on the north, east and west. Within the last two years difficulties over the Soviet-Cont-Rolled Chinese Eastern Railway has threatened military action in Manchuria.

Japan has long looked to Manchuria as an outlet for her population, which is overcrowding the island empire to an almost prohibitive extent. She has claimed a sphere of influence which was recognized in 1907 by Great Britain, France and Russia. Ten years later the United States recognized that "Japan has special interests in China, particularly in the part to which her possessions are continuous." The reference was to Manchuria.

Troops Protect Road.

Under such conditions Japan built the Southern Manchurian Railway, extending from Darien into the heart of Manchuria and connecting with the Chinese Eastern Railway. Japanese troops have protected the road, under agreement with the Chinese government, which holds partial control of the road. Although the purpose of roads previously built in Manchuria was chiefly military, the Southern Manchuria Line was constructed for commercial purposes and was a great success.

In all instances connected with the road, the Japanese government agreed to respect the sovereignty of China and to adhere to the principle of equality of all nations.

The railroad at present owns and operates 690 miles in which about 239,000,000 yen ($118,000,000) is invested.

(United Press.)

Reports of fighting between Japanese and Chinese forces at Mukden were received with serious concern in official Washington circles, particularly because of the strong tension which already existed between the two countries over previous incidents.

The State Department last night had received no official report of the clash at Mukden, but showed keen interest in press dispatches. The Chinese Legation was also without information.

The outbreak aroused speculation here as to whether the United States would invoke the Kellogg antiwar pact.

It was recalled that Secretary of State Stimson during the Chinese-Russian dispute in 1929 admonished both powers not to violate their pledge to seek solution of international disputes solely by peaceful means. State Department officials declined to comment on the possibility of such action on the part of the United States in the present clash.

At Nanking their arrival was eagerly awaited. With the flooded Yangtze running a heavy current, extensive preparations had been made for their safety. Launches and motorboats will sweep the river clear of other craft to permit a safe landing.

FINANCE PROBLEMS SEEN ON INCREASE

Warning Is Given by League in Asking Increased Appropriation.

Geneva, Sept. 18 (A.P.).—The League of Nations financial committee warned the league assembly today that the condition of international finances may grow even worse in the coming months and that if the league itself is to continue assisting those nations which needed help, the finance committee must have a larger appropriation.

This report was addressed to the budget committee, which has been under heavy pressure to cut down expenses. The group of distinguished experts who make up the finance committee appealed for the funds necessary to carry out the remedial work already in progress and to provide for such additional assistance as may be necessary for the rest of this year and next year.

Tonight the committee was back at work on its report recommending drastic measures to rehabilitate Austria's monetary system. One of the most important of these is that the country's 1932 budget should be cut to $280,000,000 of which $14,000,000 would cover reimbursement of short-term obligations.

The assembly's disarmament committee welcomed a movement by women's organizations for closer cooperation between women and the League aiming at success at the disarmament conference next February, but made it clear that women as representatives of their societies would not be permitted to sit in the conference.

Salvador De Madariaga, Spanish Ambassador to Washington, presented the resolution calling for closer cooperation.

Robert L. Craigie, naval expert of the British foreign office, who arrived in Geneva last night, was in touch today with representatives of the Italian and French governments, which were understood to be carrying on negotiations with a view to adjusting the naval construction question. Informed quarters said there was no evidence to indicate that a Franco-Italian agreement could be hoped for in the near future.

Paris, Sept. 19 (Saturday) (A.P.).—The newspaper Le Matin says this morning the French government has made fresh proposals to Italy with a view to clearing away difficulties standing in the way of the Franco-Italian naval agreement.

Robert L. Craigie, naval expert of the British foreign office, is in Geneva for the purpose of collaborating in the Italian reply, Le Matin asserts. In principle, it is stated, each navy is to regain its rights in certain categories. In other categories France would agree to reduce her building program annually by a percentage yet to be fixed on a reciprocity arrangement.

BUS CONTROL URGED BY BAR ASSOCIATION

Revision of Antitrust Laws Also Favored as Remedy for Bad Business.

Atlantic City, Sept. 18 (A.P.).—The American Bar Association, urging changes in the Nation's laws to help disabled business, today advocated revision of the antitrust laws and regulation of passenger-carrying motor vehicles in interstate traffic.

The association also reaffirmed its stand favoring participation by the United States in the World Court, and delved into the new legal intricacies of radio and aeronautic law.

The radio law committee report brought a charge from the floor by Frank P. Walsh, chairman of the Power Authority of New York, and liberal lawyer, that the report—not acted on by the association—would be used as propaganda for radio, newspapers and other powerful interests against organized labor's plea for a separate broadcast chain.

Will Affect Land Values.

The aeronautic committee report—also not acted upon—brought a charge from Nathan W. McChesney, counsel for the Real Estate Boards of the United States, that if the committee persisted in its attitude that there is no such thing as ownership of the air, it would do to land values what "wine bricks have done to the Volstead act."

The World Court resolution was reaffirmation of the association's stand taken at its 1929 convention. Though opposition was expected, the resolution passed with only a few scattered nays. The resolution urged that "the Permanent Court of International Justice is the greatest of international instrumentalities at preservation of peace and justice between nations."

The resolution against passenger-carrying motor vehicles was described by Rush C. Butler, of Chicago, its sponsor, as being an attempt to bring buses under the same restraints as railroads. He pointed out that buses compete in interstate commerce, but are not regulated, and therefore have a competitive advantage.

Reaffirms Earlier Position.

Mr. Butler also announced that his commerce committee unanimously reaffirmed the position of the association two years ago advocating amendments to the antitrust laws to permit greater cooperation among businesses, which now, he said, are even under peril of criminal prosecution if suspected of trade restraint practices.

Judge O'Toole Elected To Woman's Bar Office

The women lawyers elected Olive Stott Gabriel, of New York City, president, and Grace Bullock, of Los Angeles, Calif., vice president. Serving with Judge O'Toole on the executive committee will be Mabeth H. Paige, of Minneapolis, Minn., and Frances Spooner, of Chicago.

HOOVER BEER SUPPORT RUMOR COOLED BY WHITE HOUSE AID

next week. For in the legion, too, there is agitation for a change in the prohibition law.

Employment Figures Bared.

Mr. Newton, reading from the reply received from the Census Bureau, contrasted the number of persons employed in the breweries in the wide-open year of 1914, the number in 1919, which was a period between war-time prohibition and prohibition under the eighteenth amendment, and the number in 1929.

In 1914, 75,000 persons were employed in the breweries, and received in wages $80,000,000.

In 1919, 42,000 persons were employed, and received $68,000,000 in wages.

In 1929, 6,400 persons were employed in the near-beer plants, and received $12,000,000 in wages.

The Census Bureau says there has been a 24 per cent increase in the population in that period. Thus, using the employment figure for 1914, it would be safe to assume that about 93,000 persons would be employed in the breweries now if beer were to be legalized.

Would Drink More Beer.

The wets, or the modificationists, say, however, that this isn't one one-twentieth of the argument. In the first place, they say, a vastly larger amount of beer would be consumed now than was consumed in the old days, for the reason that good hard liquor is not now available in the quantities it was then.

Looking at it from an employment standpoint, they say that not only brewery workers would be provided employment by a modification of the Volstead act, but that workers in a half a dozen or more allied industries would be benefited.

Thus, they say, the farmer would be helped by an increased demand for hops; the bottle works employe by an increased demand for bottles; the railroad worker by the increased traffic in beer, and so on.

In answer to these arguments, such drys as Richard H. Scott, president of the Reo Motor Co., and a spokesman for the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church, asks this question:

"If the restoration of beer will stabilize the economic situation in this country, why has it not prevented economic chaos in Germany? Instead of turning to prohibition America for aid in Germany's extremity, why didn't President Hindenburg order more beer?"

In the last few months, two members of Congress have importuned President Hoover to come out for beer and wine—Representative Dyer (Republican), Missouri, and Representative-elect White (Republican), Ohio.

Representative Dyer, who represents St. Louis, the home of Anheuser Busch, reiterated yesterday that a reopening of the breweries would give employment to 1,000,000 men and add $1,000,000,000 to the revenue of the Federal Government and the State and municipal governments.

"If," said Representative Dyer, "the President would recommend to Congress modification of the Volstead Act on economic grounds, which he could do without taking back anything he has said or done, we could put it through."

A word from the President, the Missouri Republican said, would lead a number of nominal drys to vote for modification.

"Outside of the bootleggers and the racketeers," Mr. Dyer said, "the only people opposed to modification are those who live off the issue in dry organizations and in passing the plate in churches. The real temperance people are in favor of modification.

May Be Issue in 1932.

"I think prohibition is going to be the main issue in 1932 if something isn't done by the next Congress. But if Congress will do something about it, the people will be satisfied to try it out.

"To hell with politics. Prohibition shouldn't be made a political issue, but it will be unless Congress does something about it."

Before Secretary Newton discussed yesterday's beer report with newspapermen, he and Secretary Theodore Joslin talked with President Hoover for about 10 minutes.

A little later, President Hoover sent word out to the press room that the regular 4 o'clock press conference had been called off.

Law Took 120,000 Jobs, Pabst, Beer Man, Asserts

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 18 (A.P.).—Fred Pabst, sr., head of a brewery here bearing his name, today estimated the number of persons thrown out of employment in the brewing industry by prohibition, as 120,000.

Pabst, in commenting on a report that Walter H. Newton, one of President Hoover's secretaries, had requested statistics regarding the brewery industry for an unnamed principal said, "present employment in the industry is negligible. While I do not maintain that return of beer would solve the unemployment problem, I do suggest that it would increase opportunity for employment greatly."

In 1910, Pabst said, the industry was ranked sixth in the United States. He said his total of 120,000 ousted from employment by prohibition included approximately 65,000 brewery workers, 27,200 building trades employes working for breweries, 6,000 boxmakers, 4,000 coopers, a clerical force of 10,000 and 8,000 printers employed annually to print labels.

Fleischmann's Is Fined $3,000 in Rum Case

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 18 (A.P.).—A long legal battle over liquor conspiracy charges involving 50 individuals and two corporations ended today in Federal court with imposing of a $3,000 fine on the Fleischmann's Yeast Co., which had pleaded nolo contendere to charges of violating the prohibition law by sale of its products for use in manufacturing liquor.

In making the plea the company neither admitted nor denied the charge. Defense attorneys argued that the Fleichmann's Co. was no longer in existence, having been absorbed by Standard Brands, Ins., August 14, 1929, five months before the conspiracy indictment was returned.

NEW ENGLAND JUDGE COMMITS SUICIDE

the town of Milton. Policemen said they found the judge under the influence of liquor. They did not know him and took him to the police station, where he put up a fight before he was subdued, they said. A county official later recognized the judge, and he was released. No charge was placed against him.

Yesterday the State registrar of motor vehicles announced he had suspended the judge's right to operate a motor vehicle "for good and sufficient reasons." Later an assistant attorney general was assigned to investigate the case. He went to Dover, where Judge Oakes was hearing the case of an alleged hit-and-run driver. After a conference, the judge declared a mistrial in the case, and returned to his home here.

Judge Oakes' only survivors were his daughter and a brother, Maj. Carl Oakes, of the War College, at Washington, D. C.

MALINGERING HELPS SUSPECT TO ESCAPE

George Emmett Hicks, Aged 36, Flees From Witness Room With Sandwich.

After begging police not to lock him in a cell because he did not feel well, George Emmett Hicks, 36, who is said to have committed a number of burglaries in Washington, broke out of the comfortable quarters allotted him Thursday night at the Twelfth Precinct, and, on top of that, disappeared.

Detective Sergt. Michael Dowd, who made the arrest, took Hicks to the Twelfth Precinct and after the prisoner said he felt ill and wanted to take a nap, made arrangements for him to be locked in the witness room, saying that he would be back later to question the man. Before leaving, Dowd gave the prisoner two packages of cigarettes, a sandwich and a bottle of milk. The grateful prisoner then told his captor that when he returned he would tell anything the detective wanted to know.

Shortly after midnight yesterday, while making his rounds, Pvt. W. M. Perry discovered that the "ill" prisoner had left for parts unknown. After investigating, it was found that Hicks had removed a metal support from a post in the room and used it to jimmy the door.

In 1930 Hicks confessed to having committed 61 robberies. However, only four charges were placed against him and he was sent to the District Jail to await trial. While sojourning there he began to act strangely and was sent to St. Elizabeths Hospital as mentally unsound. A year later he was pronounced cured and released.

According to Dowd, Hicks was seen breaking into an apartment by a woman who identified his photograph. Dowd picked up his prisoner near the postoffice Thursday.

Indian Committee Adjourns Session

Gandhi Stays in London as Most Members Go to Country.

London, Sept. 18 (A.P.).—The federal structures committee of the Indian round table conference adjourned today for the week-end, having completed its discussions of methods of election to the Indian federal legislature.

Most of the delegates are spending the holiday in the country, but Mahatma Gandhi remains at Kingsley Hall and may speak once or twice in public before the committee resumes on Monday.

At that time the delegates will take up the second phase of their deliberations, the relations between the two chambers of the Indian legislature. It is hoped the committee may finish its work by Friday, after which there will be a session of the minorities committee. Then Lord Sankey, the chairman, will draw up a report of the discussions thus far.

National Cash Register To Resume Dividends

New York, Sept. 18 (A.P.).—Prompted largely by improved earnings the National Cash Register Co. resumed dividend payments today on its class A common stock by declaration of a 87½ cents dividend. The dividend was omitted in March prior to which 75 cents was paid quarterly.

The payment will be made October 15 to stockholders of record September 30.

Canadian Dollar Drops; Wheat Prices Blamed

New York, Sept. 18 (A.P.).—The Canadian dollar was quoted at a discount of around 1¾ cents by foreign exchange dealers today, the lowest in at least two years.

The pressure against the Canadian dollar was attributed by bankers with Montreal connections in part to the low prices which Canada is getting for her wheat.

"THE SPIDER." Fox picturization of the play by Fulton Oursler and Lowell Brentano, with continuity and dialogue by Barry Connors and Phillip Klein, featuring Edmund Lowe, supported by Lois Moran, Earle Foxe, Purnell Pratt, Warren Hymer, El Brendel and Howard Phillips. Directed by William Cameron Menzies and Kenneth MacKenna. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL.

For once the stage has set the cinema a task that it finds it difficult to perform—and that on account of the screen's only serious limitation. A great deal of the suspense created during the action of the original version of "The Spider" and a vast preponderance of its excitement and surprise were the result of having the movement of the melodrama progress on both sides of the footlights. The audience was as much a part of the cast as those actually programmed in the dramatis personae. Speeches were hurled at the on-stage actors from all parts of the house by other actors who apparently were no such things!

Now then, this strange arrangement, with Chatrand, the magician, presenting his feats of baffling black art from all parts of a spacious theater, has been perpetuated insofar as the studio audience was concerned, but not at all insofar as it might have involved, for example, the crowds that packed the Fox for its fourth anniversary bill yesterday afternoon. The net result is that while the audience on the screen is having a tremendously thrilling experience, the one actually out front in the chairs is merely viewing another picture. It is too bad.

I do not at all mean to say, however, that "The Spider," as Edmund Lowe and his associates interpret it, is not blood-tingling entertainment, for it is—but it does not freeze you solid in your seat.

No more than in the stage version of the play will you be able to determine precisely when, why or by whom the murder in the theater was committed. It is about as mystifying a film as has come along since goodness knows when, and the role of Chatrand, created by John Halliday, is splendidly played by the adroit and suave Mr. Lowe. Lois Moran and numerous others whose names will be found in the small-type paragraph preceding this brief summary render skillful support. The spectator, nevertheless, is at no time made to feel that he is particeps criminis to the goings on he is watching—and that was half the fun.

The screen feature of secondary importance in the eyes of many is "Disarmament," a weak carbon copy of an "Our Gang" juvenile comedy, which need occasion Mr. Hal Roach no serious concern as dangerous competition.

The Fanchon & Marco "Varieties" idea resolves itself into a four-act-and-finale vaudeville bill. The first and second turns are, respectively, gymnasts and club jugglers—but expert ones—and the third and fourth, comedy and dancing. The Theodore-Enrica-Novello dancing ensemble offers a two-scene divertissement that affords the only real color in the stage entertainment. Sully and Thomas are knockabout funsters with a little dubious material who score the hit of the show.

For the overture number Al Mitchell presents a tone poem of his own composition, depicting the growth of the National Capital—with scenic effects—and introducing Harlan Randall and his male quartet in "Washington the Beautiful," the ballad from which the mosaic derives its title. Tumultuously received.

The Fox Movietone News and morning and late afternoon showings of "The Vanishing Legion" complete a pretentious program.

"PERSONAL MAID." Paramount picturization of Grace Perkins' novel, starring Nancy Carroll, supported by Gene Raymond, Mary Boland, George Fawcett and Pat O'Brien. Directed by L. Monte Bell. Reviewed Friday night by Dorothea Lewis.

As our taxi-driver said, "it's a swell show." Even after paying a $2 mutual for out-of-bounds parking, he liked it. That is a sendoff!

Aside from a bit of retarding repetition of line and situation toward the end, and slight waverings now and then from the story, the picture is interesting and entertaining.

Nora Ryan tires of her De Lancey street tenement home and bickering family, so she straightway moves into the home of Gary Gary, millionaire, and his mad, mad family as personal maid to his daughter-in-law. Old G. G., lord of them all and best of the lot, sits on his top-floor terrace and spys on the whole weak, futile crew.

There is a grandson, Dick, quite a boy, whom Nora is supposed to lure to quiet and safety in Virginia to keep granddad from hearing of a certain "firing" from Yale. She fails, but not without discovering that Dick is fearfully spoiled but rather nice, full of possibilities, and almost too likeable. He in turn discovers Nora more of a lady than any lady he ever knew.

Nora determines to be a "real lady" for one week on borrowed clothes and some money skillfully gold-digged from old G. G., who loves it. The big result of her masquerade is one Peter Shea. Then she goes back to work, Dick comes home, and there's a general round of unmasking.

Gene Raymond, as Dick, adds another blond young newcomer to the screen's ranks of excellent juveniles. You'll like his voice and acting very much—or should. He's natural and easy and good.

George Fawcett bellows and blusters deliciously as G. G. Grand old man! Mary Boland is a pungent, briak, clever Mrs. Gary, jr. Pat O'Brien, so brilliant in the "Front Page," has almost nothing to do, so it's hard to tell if he's merely bored or bad. Hugh O'Connell has a moment or two.

The Miniature Revue, on the stage, has fun and beauty in far from small portions. There's a rarely graceful couple dancing in the first scene. Then two grinning youngsters doing a rag-doll dance deftly and later a Dutch number deftly (pardon) against an effective background of Chester Hale girls gone daintily Hollandese. There's Daveya, "the big act," with his patter and manner all his own, meanwhile tossing cannon balls about and nonchalantly swallowing swords along with very bad Scotch jokes. Marietta climbs from beneath a swaying, scenic elephant to twist and turn amazingly. Fields, Smith and Fields dance and fall and tangle amusingly, but their act would be more fun if the Three Sailors hadn't done it all—every bit—before.

With the orchestra and newsreels, all in all, a big week.

"TRAVELING HUSBANDS." RKO picturization of a story by Humphrey Pearson, featuring Evelyn Brent, Hugh Herbert, Frank Albertson, Constance Cummings, Dorothy Peterson and Gwen Lee. Directed by Paul Sloane. Reviewed Friday afternoon by Bob Considine.

That a wife, after all, is a handy thing to have around the house and, for all her mistakes, not such a terrible entity in the social scale, is the premise upon which "Traveling Husbands" is based. It is RKO'S occasionally valiant, but generally scrambled, attempt to settle a question which has been mulled over by every franchised male who has had the opportunity to leave home and fireside in quest of the golden fleece of "business."

The key bit of dialogue in the whole affair is uttered in the words of handsome and hirsute Hugh Herbert, who queries his traveling associates thusly: "What's a man going to do, who has to live ten months a year in hotel rooms, alone?"

What the particular traveling men in this case—Hymie, Barry and Al—do, is generally interesting. They surround themselves, in a hectic hotel suite, with such bits of femininity as Evelyn Brent, Constance Cummings (a knockout, brethren and sistern, a knockout), Gwen Lee and Dorothy Peterson.

There is more humor of a type generally associated with men who travel than there is action and suspense. The piece moves over the full first half (without a glimpse of the saturnine Brent) supported almost entirely by dialogue, once in a while of swell content. Suddenly the talking ceases as though some one had thrown an anchor into the machinery. Hugh is shot in a tussle over Constance, house dicks swarm about the place and lovely Dorothy Peterson, the wife Hugh left in Osawatomie, comes into the camera's range with a fifteen-minute speech on the manifold duties of wives and demi-wives.

RKO and Floyd Gibbons have done nobly by posterity in "Woodrow Wilson's Great Decision." This Gibbons man, with his now roaring, now confiding voice, and the personality which rolls over the audience like a rip tide, gives to a series of old Wilsonian newsreels a continuity and splendor which brought yesterday's audience half to its feet with cheers. It is a picture not to be missed. Only too fittingly is it shown in the theater made almost a national shrine by the weekly attendance of the late President.

Chic Sale, "America's greatest delineator of rural characters," appears in a listless two-reeler with nothing to recommend it but its speedy completion. It remains for a Silly Smyphony cartoon, whose locale is the interior of the Sphinx, actually to steal the show, so brilliantly conceived is its musical accompaniment, its breathless suspense, the clog dancing of four mummies and the race between mural chariots. It, and the fateful jabbering of Gibbons, make the bill, as a whole, well worth two hours of anybody's time.

"STREET SCENE." United Artists picturization of Elmer Rice's play, adapted to the screen by the author, featuring Sylvia Sidney and William Collier, jr., supported by David Landau, Estelle Taylor and Beulah Bondi. Directed by King Vidor. Reviewed Friday evening by W. A. Whitsey.

Well above the rank and file of program pictures, Elmer Rice's Pulitzer prize play comes to the screen, depicting the seamy side of life with all its starkness and tragedy, but without its smiles. This picture, masterfully handled by King Vidor, has little in the way of narrative, interest being held through the medium of the several characters, their interests, their bickerings, their scandal-mongering.

Photographed before the doorway of a house in the "roaring forties" (or something like that) of New York, and never departing from it more than a few feet, life in almost its starkest forms is presented; birth and death, love and hate, and all the other attributes of humanity.

Characters there are aplenty, representing practically every nationality and turn of mind, drawn in bold relief, so bold, in fact, that with a few exceptions, they tend to be more caricatures than real, living beings.

The pivotal characters, if any two may be so designated, are played by Sylvia Sidney and William Collier, jr.

"Street Scene" is most aptly named, the entire sum and substance being just what the appellation connotes; life as it may be observed from the street—and a short street, at that. Because of the self-imposed space limitations, the picture gets off to a slow start, but once the characters are fixed in the mind the action speeds up.

To ward off any possible attacks of melancholia and to remove the immediate effects of the sordidness of the featured drama, William T. Tilden 2d offers the third of his tennis lessons, "Volley and Smash," showing various defensive and offensive plays. Zasu Pitts, Thelma Todd, and Gwinn Williams present an excruciating travesty on rassling. "Catch as Catch Can;" Lew White, via the synchronized celluloid, offers an organlogue of minstrelsy; and the Paramount Sound News visualizes world events, featuring the Belize disaster.

GREED SHOWS ITS HAND.

Perhaps it was well that the interests conspiring to throw the World War debt upon the United States should have shown their hand prematurely. Their frantic desire to saddle upon American taxpayers the remaining war obligations, both of Germany and the allies, caused them to assert that the Hoover moratorium would be ineffectual unless followed by a longer suspension during which arrangements could be made to transfer all of Europe's obligations to Americans.

The effect of this agitation is to solidify the determination of Americans in and out of Congress to kill off this proposed subsidy to international bankers.

It is now virtually certain that Congress will attach such conditions to its approval of the Hoover moratorium as will make it impossible to shift European debts to American shoulders.

Revelations of boundless greed in Europe have sickened the United States Government and people. No secret is made of the feeling of resentment entertained in Washington against certain governments which displayed ingratitude and greed at the very time the United States was coming to their rescue. At this moment, in spite of attempted double-dealing in Europe, the United States Government is assisting in efforts to prevent the collapse of certain governments. Let it be admitted that the primary motive in rendering assistance is to protect the United States against further setbacks, and even then the actions of certain governments are stamped with greed and duplicity. Hence it is not unreasonable to presume that the administration will interpose little objection to such action by Congress as will safeguard American taxpayers in the matter of war debts.

That the international situation is unsatisfactory is stating the case mildly. The United States deserves at least honest cooperation when it endeavors to assist other nations at their request. It is not receiving this honest cooperation, but on the contrary is compelled to exercise vigilance lest it be overreached by those whom it is trying to help. International bankers have aggravated this situation by organizing propaganda to convince Americans that they must forgive the debts. The propaganda has exactly the opposite effect. Now, when the moratorium is soon to be passed upon by Congress, the revelations of European greed and duplicity will hardly promote the aims of the bankers who are issuing sob stories of European misery.

The committee of banking experts headed by Albert H. Wiggin, which was charged with the duty of investigating Germany's condition and to formulate a plan for converting short-term obligations into a more easy form of debt, took it upon itself to suggest that reparations and war debts should be "revised" and ultimately canceled. The political questions surrounding this subject are deep and far-reaching, and the bankers, as usual, displayed entire ignorance of these questions. The committee had no authority to make such a suggestion. It went entirely out of its jurisdiction. But at least it did some good, by exposing the eagerness of international finance to sacrifice the American taxpayer to European greed.

PAPER FOR THE AGES.

The Bureau of Standards to the rescue! Announcement is made that experiments in this great Federal institution have produced a paper made entirely of cotton that will last for hundreds of years. This is good news both for the cotton grower and those who would have their burning words in print preserved for countless generations to come.

It may be some time before the manufacture of cotton paper can be employed to satisfy the voracious appetities of the book presses and the newspaper rotaries, but special copies of all kinds of publications might be given long life by utilizing this material.

Recent examination of records and papers that were placed in a corner stone in Washington less than 50 years ago were nearly all undecipherable when removed. Elaborate and costly methods have been employed to preserve a record of the names of World War veterans in the District of Columbia War Memorial. Pure cotton fiber paper would simplify the task of preserving these and many other records. Once its manufacture is established on a commercial basis many uses will be found for it.

MUDDLING RELIEF WORK.

Republicans in the New York Legislature are giving an offensive exhibition of party politics in connection with the prompt action of Gov. Roosevelt in the national program of organization by States for unemployment relief. The governor called a special legislative session to consider his proposals carrying an appropriation of $20,000,000, to be administered under the general supervision of a commission to be appointed by the governor.

In the first general approval of the commendable move Republicans assured the State executive of their cooperation. But the governor's bill was no sooner before the Legislature than the majority began to play politics with human misery. A Republican plan was introduced to supersede that of the governor. The object was twofold—to prevent the governor from securing much credit for the relief measure, and to gain greater control of the distribution of funds through established agencies.

Undoubtedly State and private organizations will be used in any event, but all this emergency relief work is recognized today as something broader than anything of this character ever undertaken before in this country. National and State organizations are drafting men of first rank in business and finance as directing heads. In New York it was reported that Gov. Roosevelt would ask a man of no less prominence than John D. Rockefeller, jr., to lead the relief work. Republicans generally in the State and throughout the Nation will be humiliated to see the party organization dragooned into line to support a measure that has politics and not relief as its motive.

When the Republican Legislature threatened to adjourn without passing the governor's bill he announced that he would call it back in session the next day. Now that the Roosevelt bill has been sidetracked the alternative Republican measure faces the threat of veto by the governor. This is a bad start for employment relief legislation, and Republicans of the Empire State can not be proud of the part their colleagues have taken in blocking the passage of this needed appropriation.

NO BASEBALL DEPRESSION.

With the world series assured between Connie Mack's Athletics and the Cardinals of old St. Louis there is a veritable avalanche of requests for seats in the two major league ball parks. Applications are reaching headquarters by airmail and special delivery, and they come from all parts of the country. There may be depression in the land, as some say, but there is no sign of it in the anxiety to get world series tickets.

Once a year this spectacle takes place in the land. Millions of baseball fans turn their attention away from the little worries of life for the greater problems of the bounding spheroid. Hard times or good times, the big show must go on, to the screeching of millions of voices inside and outside the ball parks.

A ticket to the world series might easily be classed as a luxury, but there are moments when many men and women would forego necessaries merely to experience the joy derived from a seat in the grandstand when the umpire calls "Play Ball."

PRUDENT BUYING NOW.

A decidedly useful movement in the present situation is the campaign of education that is gradually acquiring more general support among mercantile organizations and bankers, with encouragement from both State and Federal administrations, to establish confidence in the judicious expenditure now of accumulated capital. There has not been a time in many years when so many things could be bought so cheaply as today. And this applies all along the line from household supplies to the building of a home, or investment in sound securities.

There are few persons, indeed, in this country who have not faith in the future of the United States, who do not believe that the present depression will end and the Nation again enjoy years of comfortable prosperity. It is platitudinous to repeat that the great natural wealth of the country is intact and that it is now largely a state of mind that prevents a resumption of industrial activity. The first statement is absolutely true, the second relatively so, but nevertheless business awaits, as always, trade demands that are unmistakable.

Savings grow and are carefully guarded in times of depression, or at least the owners of ready cash do what they think wisest to conserve their resources. Their judgment is not always wise. In comparison with the figures of only a year ago there is an additional amount of currency in circulation in the United States amounting to $628,000,000. The volume of business does not justify such a condition. In fact, with less activity and lower prices there should logically be less money in circulation. The answer is that probably upward of $1,000,000,000 is being hoarded in the form of cash.

Notwithstanding some failures, established institutions, particularly savings banks, are much safer than the family mattress or a hole in the backyard. Even $1,000,000,000 hidden away is a small amount in comparison with savings bank accounts, which exceed $26,000,000,000. This is a high record for all time. Much of the money held in savings accounts would in times of normal activity be circulating between customer, store, factory and worker.

Present efforts to explain the advantages offered by universally low prices should be useful in augmenting business, which in several lines has begun to show renewed activity. For those who have no more judgment than to hide savings in their homes probably no arguments will avail, and certainly it will not make for permanent welfare for small capitalists to be overpersuaded into buying unnecessary things. But there is a large class with funds laid aside for a specific purpose, who expect to use them in just that way, who are simply waiting because all the world slackened its pace.

GANDHI WANTS ACTION.

A patient man, Mahatma Gandhi, sat silently for several days, occasionally sipping goat's milk, while he listened with growing boredom to long drawn-out deliberations of a committee at the round table conference in London. Then the mahatma's composure gave way. He impatiently shifted his shawl about him and branded the committee as a debating society, saying that its deliberations were interminable.

There is a strong intimation that the mahatma may withdraw from the deliberate deliberations unless action is soon forthcoming. He believes that the conference is leading nowhere, principally because the conferees "are not of the chosen ones of the nations they should be representing, but of the chosen ones of the government."

Gently and humbly the mahatma complains, to the effect that his majesty's advisers have failed to lay their cards on the table and "to give the members of the committee a lead." Since no hint of British leadership manifested itself, the clever mahatma asked a question of those in positions of responsibility: "What would you do with India," he suggested, graciously, "if you were the arbiters of its destinies?"

Any answer to that question by any one in authority would give at least a springboard, a starting point for honest discussion of the problems which prompted the mahatma to make the journey to London, his inner voice advising. A discussion well begun, the mahatma believes, may lead the conflicting elements into some sort of harmony.

The simple, subtle soul from India, threadbare as his body may be, has thrown the British diplomats into a state of turmoil. Except for his opening address and the expostulation now attributed to him, the mahatma has held his council, saying nothing. Yet, that opening gun figuratively stood his English friends against the wall. His conciliatory suggestion that India be made a full partner with England, to share alike its sorrows and its joys, to be tied by the silken cord of love, filled the distrustful diplomats with dismay.

If, then, there is undue deliberation; if there is heavy hemming and hawing and hedging, it really is partly the mahatma's fault, for at the very beginning he placed his majesty's "chosen ones" at a decided disadvantage. Whatever answer they may make to the original demands will not conform to the hopes and aspirations that the oratory of the mahatma seemed to conjure, for these men are not willing to relax to any great degree Britain's rigid grip on India, however altruistic they may seem at the round table.

The answer which the mahatma awaits is fraught with all sorts of possibilities. To tell Gandhi and his millions of followers just what may be expected in regard to Britain's policy in India is no mean task. It is made doubly hard by the mahatma himself, who so framed his address that the master minds of the empire can not avoid giving him a reply.

With this in mind and fearful of the force that confronts them, though it is clad only in a loin cloth, the chosen ones must have time. But even India will not wait forever.

ENGLAND'S FUTURE

By Dr. C. D. BROAD, in the Thirteenth Earl Grey Memorial Lecture at Newcastle-on-Tyne.

Nations wax and wane in power, wealth, enterprise and population. A certain nation, A, may have secured very extensive territories and a great weight in international affairs when it was at its prime, whilst another nation, B, was in infancy or temporary abeyance. This state of affairs is crystallized by explicit treaties and tacit understandings; and it continues when A's power, wealth, enterprise and population have begun to decline, whilst B's have greatly increased. An extremely dangerous and unstable situation thus arises. A tends to insist much on the sanctity of treaties, whilst B feels itself to be everywhere hemmed in by legal restrictions which no longer correspond to the realities of power. B accuses A of hypocrisy, and A accuses B of turbulent ambition and cynical disrespect for international law. This was the situation of England with respect to Germany before the late war, and it will be more and more the situation of England with respect to the United States as time goes on. Germany had a very poor case in law, and a very fair case in equity; and it threw away its cards by bad manners and stupid diplomacy.

Now England is likely, for the next century at least, to be a declining power, whose legal claims and traditional status are much higher than its real position in the fellowship of nations warrants. It is, therefore, peculiarly liable to be placed in situations in which it will be threatened with what will seem to be gross acts of aggression and insolence. One of the hardest and most unpleasant duties of Englishmen in the immediate future will be to pocket their pride, to try to realize the growing disparity between the legal or traditional and the equitable position of their country in the world, and to adjust their actions to the latter rather than to the former.

In this we need not expect to be helped by any excessive display of good manners or delicate consideration on the part of foreign nations; we must be prepared in the future for a continuance of that mixture of cant, truculence and sharp practice which is the traditional note of the United States in its diplomatic relations with the world in general and England in particular.

Happily it has so far been the great political virtue of the English to know when they are beaten, though not to acknowledge it; and we have been masters at the art of erecting dignified fictions to cover our retreat from untenable positions. We are likely to need all our skill in this art if we are to avoid disaster during the difficult period of international readjustment which lies ahead of us. In future, when we are lectured by Mrs. Hominy, denounced by Mr. Jefferson Brick, bullied by Col. Chollop and used as stepping-stones in the political career of the Hon. Elijah Pogrom, it may be wholesome for us to recollect how we used to admonish continental nations for their own good in those Palmerstonian days when we were rich and they were poor.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE KINDLY IMPULSE.

Life gives us many chances to be kind,
But leaves it to our judgment to decide.
One man gives pennies to the beggar blind,
Another in his hurry steps aside.

With many burdens we are sorely pressed,
We've little time to linger on the way,
We see a stranger suffering and distressed,
And either pass him by or choose to stay.

Who would be friendly must be prompt to choose—
The Levite may have wanted to be kind;
No doubt he thought he had no time to lose;
Not so the Good Samaritan behind.

He stopped and to the stranger played the friend
And for the moment let his interests wait,
But those who blindly seek some selfish end
Miss many little chances to be great.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY Dear Louise: You are no more selfish than your generation—no more selfish than boys and girls of your age always have been. In fact, I suppose your degree of selfishness and thoughtlessness is exactly normal for your age and temperament.

You will understand, then, that I am not offering you as a horrible example when I venture a word of criticism. It isn't an insult to tell a man he is natural.

I am not writing to chide you, anyway, but only to suggest that unselfishness can be made to serve even the selfish.

That sounds cynical, but if a man won't be good for the love of goodness, the next best thing is to be good in order to keep out of jail.

In plain words, unselfishness and thoughtfulness pay a profit, regardless of the motive that prompts them.

A great many people don't believe that. If they did, everybody would be unselfish. They would be selfish enough to be unselfish to get the profit.

I wouldn't have you be good merely to win a reward, for that kind of goodness doesn't stand up in a pinch, but I tell you quite frankly that the practice of unselfish thoughtfulness is worth while from a purely selfish standpoint.

I try, in all my dealings with you, to take human nature as I find it and not hide facts behind an imaginary ideal.

I know that self-interest is the strongest motive in the world. It is mixed with all of our other motives, so that the most righteous are prompted by hope of Heaven and our greatest sacrifices for those we love give us a reward of pleasure.

Therefore, I remind you that you must be loved all your days because of your character, if you are loved at all, and the practice of unselfishness does more than anything else to build a character that is lovable.

A child is selfish by nature. And it remains selfish through life unless responsibility or uncommon intelligence teaches it the better way.

It would be natural to think only of yourself; make plans without consideration for others; demand your own way and pleasure regardless of the inconvenience and unhappiness others might suffer.

But the profit gained would be momentary. Every triumph would cost you love and respect. And the habit would develop a character much like Shylock's crossed with hyena.

The world's great are its servants. The idol of every community is one who gives much and asks little. If you would be greatly loved, practice the gentle art of considering the other fellow first—even home folks. It will make you a fine lady. Love, DAD.

PRO AND CON

Watch Hoover.

Topeka Capital.

"We have in the White House now," observes the Arkansas City Traveler, "a President who, the Traveler believes, has endeavored sincerely and fairly to represent all sections of the country. In doing so he has pleased none." All sections are hard to please when the whole world is in almost unparalleled distress. But just the same, watch Hoover. He isn't through yet. Nobody has worked and thought harder. He takes no holidays. He has great abilities. No man has shown more, and no man could have pleased those who make only one demand, and that is good times in bad times.

Government Control of Business.

New York Herald Tribune.

But this (the Swope plan) means repeal of the antitrust acts, and that, in turn, means that Government must have enough bureaucratic control over the various trade associations to prevent monopolistic abuse. Mr. Swope would give the Federal Trade Commission or some similar body "supervision" over the trade associations—which means over practically all of the major industrial enterprises of the Nation. For the administration of the insurance funds each trade association would set up a board composed equally of representatives of the association, representatives of the workers and appointees of the Federal Trade Commission. What degree of "supervision" the Government would exercise over the larger policies of the industry Mr. Swope does not say. In practice it could scarcely be less than almost absolute right of interference and control. If Mr. Swope should succeed in wiping out the American system of private initiative and control of business, what possible indication is there in experience anywhere that a system one-half as productive of general wealth and happiness would result?

Coalition Congress Will Not Do.

Detroit News.

The proposal of Representative James M. Beck, former solicitor general, now a member of Congress from Pennsylvania, for a political moratorium and a coalition in Congress is interesting, but impractical. It is the more remarkable in that it comes from one who has frequently argued in favor of party responsibility, and who apparently fails to see that in a crisis, and with a national election approaching, it is more important than ever that each party define its policies clearly and foreshadow its program to be laid before the voters.

Mr. Beck argues that only by a coalition in Congress can expenses be reduced by a large percentage. "The difficulty of effecting economies in the Congress," he says, "lies in the party system, for the minority can always propose extravagant expenditures, which, if rejected by the majority, makes for it many enemies and no friends."

Surely, if ever there was a time when a party could make hosts of friends by stopping extravagant expenditures, that time is now. The trouble lies in defining those expenditures which are extravagant and those which are not.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Maj. Pratt's Feeble Defense of an Indefensible Case—Newspapers Not Attacking Honest Policemen.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Speaking before a meeting of the Anacostia Citizens Association Tuesday night, Maj. Henry G. Pratt, chief of the Metropolitan Police, asserted that "it takes courage for a policeman to do his duty in face of the unfair and biased criticism caused by the newspapers of Washington."

Maj. Pratt is not really as mentally sluggish as that speech makes him appear. He was talking before a citizens' meeting and defending a case that by this time has been pretty well shot out from under him. But Maj. Pratt has ridden through some fairly odorous police scandals before. He knows the public soon forgets. It is always easy for inefficient public officials to blame their troubles on the press.

As a matter of fact, and Maj. Pratt well knows it, it takes less courage now for an honest policeman to do his duty than before. Honest policemen should be glad that thugs are in a fair way of being weeded out. Honest policemen know now that they have nothing to fear, because the newspapers are not publishing wild charges, biased reports or anything but the facts which Maj. Pratt has tried his best to keep away from the press. The Post story on the torture of Harker at the First Precinct was backed up by a photograph, Maj. Pratt. Try talking that away.

At the same meeting Capt. Frank M. Dent, formerly of the Eleventh Precinct, declared that in 35 years of police service he had never heard of the third degree. There is hardly anything one can say against Capt. Dent after he has delivered this amazing indictment against himself. Newspapermen know that the third degree is common in Washington. Where on earth did Capt. Dent spend the 35 years he served on the police force?

JAMES W. BAIN.

Substitute Old Law of Supply and Demand for Present Jamboree of Destruction.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: This old world seems topsy-turvy right now. Everything is just the opposite of what it used to be. Here we had Mr. Coolidge telling us when he was in the White House to practice "economy" and to be thrifty. We took his advice and savings bank deposits showed the effects of his advice.

We no sooner adapted ourselves to his philosophy and "worked hard" than we come to another administration and the advice we get from high sources in Government and business is just the opposite. Now we are told to go on a jamboree of wild spending and destruction. The Farm Board tells us to "plow under every third row of cotton," State governors get together to "drop a crop" and have a year's moratorium in cotton growing. Appropriations for the Department of Agriculture are to be ruthlessly slashed because the department has increased the natural productivity a thousand fold.

This, then, is our boasted "progress" and "efficiency!" We are suffering because we have produced too much. What a paradox! What an indictment of our so-called "leaders" and scientists! Certainly, under the old logic that people used to employ, the thing to do when too much has been produced is to lower the price and give consumers the benefits. This results in increased consumption and reduces the surplus, thus bringing the price up again. People were spoiled by the high prices during the war and after and have been thinking in terms of high prices. But it is criminal to advocate destruction of commodities while there are millions who need them and badly

"LIBERAL."

Office Worker Extols Virtues of Daylight Saving Time in Cities.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Upon reading an editorial in The Post upon daylight saving time, I was both amused and offended by the attack upon something which evidently you have never personally experienced. Having lived every summer for the past ten years where the pleasures and comforts from daylight saving time have been experienced, I couldn't resist protesting against your misstatement of its benefits.

To arise at 5 a. m. when the earth is most beautiful, to be through the day's work while the sun is yet high and the hours may be spent in rest or recreation, is yet to be deplored by any one who experiences it. I don't refer to the silly arrangement they had in Washington, when the clocks were not turned ahead, but people went to work an hour earlier.

In New York now the commuter is beginning to regret that "in only a short while it will be dark when I get home at 6:30, while now I am home in daylight and the children and I have a walk before dinner." I have heard more than one mother in the suburbs say, "I don't see why we don't have D. L. S. the year round."

Of course you come back with, "The farmer * * *," but what farmer is not up with or before the streak of dawn in the summer. When one building alone will empty 5,000 people to enjoy the evening, the farmer I am sure would be willing, and is, to rise an hour earlier.

CURTIS TO ADDRESS CAPITAL RADIO SHOW

Opening Ceremonies Are Set for Monday Night; Fair to Last Five Days.

Vice President Curtis yesterday accepted an invitation to make a short address that will mark the opening of Washington's first annual radio and electric show at the Washington Auditorium.

The ceremonies will take place Monday evening at 8 o'clock and will be broadcast through Station WRC of the National Broadcasting Co. Throughout the remainder of the week the exposition will be open daily from 2 p. m. until 11 p. m. and will present a program of entertainment that will introduce new radio stars each day.

Monday night's program will present a humorous skit entitled "Microphobia," which was written by Raymond Knight, who will also play the principal part in the playlet. Included in the cast will be the members of the famous Russian Cathedral Quartet, Mary McCoy, lyric soprano; Walter Preston, barytone, and Elsie May Gordon, the talented diseuse of numerous national radio programs.

A unique demonstration is also planned by the Army Air Corps, cooperating with the radio and electric show and the National Broadcasting Co. Providing tests now being made prove satisfactory, an Army dirigible will fly above the auditorium with an orchestra whose music will be broadcast from the blimp and subsequently over an NBC network.

It is expected this demonstration will be valuable in proving the advantages of lighter than air craft for certain types of observation and communication.

Of equal interest to the appearance of broadcasting stars, will be the demonstrations of new electrical developments by John Bellamy Taylor, of the General Electric Co.'s research laboratory, who will show the phenomenal powers of electricity in laboratory experiments.

The Westinghouse Electric Co. will present Mr. Televox, the famous electric man, in a series of startling demonstrations, and also many other experimental and practical electrical devices.

Among others, audiences will see the well known Sea Islanders, Baby Rose Marie, Walter Campbell Tetley, Ray Perkins, Hack Wilson, John S. Young and the Landt Trio and White.

As a special attraction on Thursday evening, Virginia Dudley, the celebrated Washington operatic star, will appear in a series of selections that will be broadcast over station WRC from the radio and electric show stage.

New Chile Envoy Meets President

Dr. Walsh, at Georgetown, Places Him Among Great Latin Ambassadors.

Senor Don Miguel Cruchaga, the new Ambassador of Chile, who presented his credentials to President Hoover yesterday on the anniversary of Chilean independence, was praised as "a steadying influence in these unsettled times" in a statement by Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., regent of the Georgetown University School of Foreign Service.

During his former ambassadorship in Washington, Senor Cruchaga founded a school in Chile modeled after the Georgetown school and at the same time founded an essay medal at Georgetown.

"The new government of Chile is to be congratulated on naming Don Miguel Cruchaga as ambassador to the United States," Dr. Walsh said. "Few Chileans are better qualified to interpret and represent the people of his native land in Washington. A trained diplomat of some 30 years' experience in international service, a statesman who has served as cabinet officer in his native land, an authority on international law known and respected wherever the masters of that science meet, an author of many volumes on law and political science and an impartial judge in disputes between governments is an ornament to any diplomatic corps and a steadying influence."

Canada Mines Less Coal.

Ottawa, Sept. 18 (A.P.).—Canada produced 2,700,174 tons of coal during the second quarter of 1931, a decrease of 27.8 per cent from the 1926-30 average, a report issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics shows. Compared with the corresponding period of last year the figures showed a decline of 39.2 per cent.

POST RESORT SITE IS EASILY REACHED

Woodland Beach Is Only 32 Miles Distant; Tomorrow Good Day for Trip.

Combine business with pleasure tomorrow by taking a trip to Woodland Beach, The Washington Post's summer home development on the South River in Maryland.

It is easy to reach. Drive out Defense Highway to Camp Parole, turning right there on Maryland State Highway No. 2 across South River, and then left on Mayo road, which leads directly to the beach clubhouse. It is only 32 miles and the roads are good.

If you go by electric car take the W. B. & A. line to Camp Parole, where all cars are met by buses to the beach. Or if you prefer, the beach is also served by the Washington, Marlboro & Annapolis Bus Line leaving Eleventh street and Pennsylvania avenue.

When you arrive take a good look all around the beach property, including its 4½ miles of water front, and pick out a choice spot for a summer cottage.

Property there is not costly and the terms are easy. The price of all lots is $99, but only $9, and the price of a subscription to The Washington Post are required when you make the purchase. Monthly installments of $3.50 will then take care of the balance, with no interest charges to increase the total.

Woodland Beach has attracted hundreds of Capital residents who are now listed as property owners there. A good percentage of these owners have built or are building there.

Contract Is Signed For Diamond Fleet

New Steamship Corporation Obtains 12 Ships for $1,660,181.

(Associated Press.)

A contract covering the sale of the twelve Shipping Board vessels comprising the Diamond Line fleet to the Black Diamond Steamship Corporation of New York for $1,660,181 was signed yesterday at the Shipping Board offices.

A new company, the American Diamond Lines, Inc., has been formed to operate the line and carry out a construction program approximating $12,000,000 over a period of ten years.

The program calls for the building of five 16-knot passenger cargo steamers and the reconstruction of five of the Diamond fleet to increase their speed to 13 knots for the North Atlantic trade.

The new company has been awarded an ocean mail contract, not yet formally signed, covering service to Antwerp and Rotterdam from New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Norfolk. Delivery of the ships will begin after the ocean mail contract has been signed. This is expected within the next few days.

Flower Show Honors Won By Mrs. Mills

Mrs. Pratt Also Successful With Blooms at Exhibition.

Mrs. Ogden L. Mills, wife of the Undersecretary of the Treasury, and Representative Ruth Baker Pratt, have stepped into the limelight as winners in the twentieth annual fall flower and vegetable show of the Oyster Bay Horticultural Society, which opened Thursday in the auditorium of St. Dominick's Church at Oyster Bay.

Mrs. Mills, with blooms and vegetables grown on her estate in Woodbury, near Cold Springs Harbor, won second honors on the opening day with eleven first awards and four seconds. Washingtonians who have gathered at the Mills house in Eighteenth street for various fetes are familiar with the beauty of the flowers grown at her Long Island estate. On various occasions, she has had quantities of the blooms shipped down from the country for the decoration of her house here.

Mrs. Pratt's entries, grown on her Glen Cove estate, won twenty-one blue ribbons, four reds and one yellow. In the dahlia section a blue-ribbon winner among Mrs. Pratt's entries was her group of three vases, which included specimens of the queen of the garden, a bright, lemon-colored bloom on a tall, strong stem; the Jersey beacon, with its scarlet petals lined with warm tan, and sunrise, which is yellow at the heart and shades out to a soft rose at the tip.

What Today Means to You

"VIRGO."

IF September 19 is you birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to 1:15 p. m. and from 4 p. m. to 7:05 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:15 a. m. to 9:45 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3:20 p. m. and from 9 p. m. to 10:45 p. m.

Unexpected turns in the current of events will bring various surprises on September 19, according to the signs. Both employers and employes will benefit, and their good fortune, whatever it may be, will come suddenly. Research writers, inventors and those whose business is unusual, are promised all sorts of good things.

Children born on this September 19 will be faithful to duty, adaptable to environment, loyal to friends and enthusiastic in their work. Given normal health conditions—and these will need watching—they are bound to be successful, both materially and morally.

You, if born on September 19, are careful and cautious—so much so, in fact, that your career, whatever it may be, is liable to be retarded by your inability to take advantage quickly of opportunities when they present themselves. Impulsiveness is to be deprecated. Excessive deliberation, on the other hand, has serious drawbacks. Even when you have reached a decision, you always show hesitancy in putting it into execution and are mentally assailed by innumerable doubts and hypothetical "ifs."

Your integrity is unquestioned, and when only right or wrong is involved, no time is wasted by you in meditation. You make up your mind instantaneously, and it is only when expediency is the issue that you are in doubt. You are very conscientious and painstaking, punctual and punctilious. In your habits—and you are a creature of custom—you are fussy and more disposed to worry over details than essentials. Your disposition is an amiable one, although you are extremely sensitive and unduly jealous. You are slow to anger and quick to forgive.

You love your home, and, if a woman, devote a great deal of energy and thought to making it happy and pleasant. Sometimes your excessive diligence in this respect brings about a result contrary to that for which you have striven.

Successful people born on September 19:

Key Pittman, senator.

William B. Astor, merchant and capitalist.

James de Koven, clergyman and author.

Marshall P. Wilder, humorist.

Ethan Allen Hitchcock, statesman.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

FOR six days next week listeners may hie themselves over to the Radio and Electric Show at the Washington Auditorium for a good look at a number of radio favorites—local and national—as they appear before the microphones. A different performnce will be staged each day.

As many of WRC's local programs as possible will be broadcast from a specially-constructed studio at the auditorium. Among the entertainers imported from New York is Raymond Knight, of station KUKU fame, presenting "Microphobia." This cast includes Countess Olga Albani, Walter Preston, and Joe Rines Orchestra. Appearing on other nights will be Mary McCoy, Ray Perkins, Baby Rose Marie, the South Sea Islanders, John S. Young, and others.

The District of Columbia gained .02 of one unit through the formal adoption of the new census figures by the Federal Radio Commission in the calculation of its quota system governing distribution of broadcasting facilities.

Maryland lost .01 and Virginia gained .01. A unit is defined in commission regulations as the equivalent of one station of 1,000 watts power operating full time on a regional channel. Other classes of stations are pro-rated on this basis as to their unit values.

A YOUNG singer who will surely be heard from over the radio and on the concert stage, Floreine Hurley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. M. Hurley, of 1383 F street northeast, is to be afforded an opportunity to continue her voice studies if a series of five outstanding concerts arranged Mrs. Bertha Martin, at Constitution Hall is successful.

The opening concert will present no less a person than Miss Mary Garden in the "one and only" Mary's first Washington appearance in a number of years, on Friday, October 30.

"Miss Hurley has a beautiful natural voice, a real mezzo with contralto tendencies," Charles L. Wagner, of New York, wrote to John J. Daly recently, the latter having arranged an audition for her with the well-known manager, "and with the proper care and training, could, within two years, I feel sure, do something worth while in the opera and concert world."

Miss Hurley, who has been studying with Pasquale Amato of the Metropolitan Opera Company, has done some radio work over Station WOV, New York City, but has not been on the air locally.

Having tuned out Rudy Vallee, Russ Columbo and Columbia's badly over touted Bing Crosby, Thursday night, we finally turned the set off entirely as most of the stuff played by the dance orchestras sounded as if it had come from the jungles of Haiti.

There were two exceptions—the first a section of the Nordica Mandolin Club, of Washington, under the leadership of Walter T. Holt. Another good group—the Continentals from the Hotel Pierre in New York—played bright, attractive music without its being trashy. The basses in this dance orchestra, and their marked rhythm, were quite unusual.

MENTION of a price on a chain program of one of the major networks was heard for the first time, at least to the knowledge of this writer, in the A. T. & T. offering, "Music Over the Wires," broadcast by Columbia last Sunday night and sponsored locally by the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. It was when the announcer said that a long distance telephone call might be made at the night rate to St. Louis "for less than $2."

The advertising announcements on this program, however, were handled with discretion and the time allotted to advertising was held down to the minimum.

The program itself, conducted by Domenico Savino, with orchestra and a mixed chorus, assisted by Frank Moulan, was the best heard this season and holds forth much promise in livening up what have been rather deadly Sunday nights over the radio during the past summer.

Savino, as shown in his "Tone Pictures," has proved himself a master hand with orchestra and vocal chorus effects. Likewise, he seems to have the knack of hitting about the right medium between classical and popular music.

Frank Moulan's singing of "Willow, Tit Willow," from "The Mikado," was uproariously funny. The little tremble in his voice reminded one of the late President Roosevelt, whose voice, when he was in high glee, frequently broke into a falsetto.

The second of the series of the telephone company concerts will be heard over Station WMAL at 7:15 o'clock tomorrow night.

BROADCASTING will celebrate its eleventh anniversary with National Radio Week, beginning Monday. A number of network offerings will be dedicated to the industry * * * Many programs will be staged in Madison Square Garden during the N. Y. Radio Show next week * * * Gridiron forecasts will be made by William J. Fagan this afternoon * * * A sea drama, "Death at the Helm," may be picked up from WJZ at 8:30 p. m. * * * WJSV will soon enliven its programs with three hours' entertainment each week from studios in the Fox Theater.

Coming about as near as any one person to being the inventor of radio, Marconi will talk on the "Beginnings of Wireless" from London this afternoon (WMAL—4 p. m.).

THERE is food for serious thought in the suicide of Mrs. Margaret Hendricks, a widow in New York who had suffered a nervous breakdown, and left a note saying that the blaring of a radio in the home of a neighbor had been the principal cause for her act.

The golden rule is a good motto to follow in running a radio when there are neighbors close by who may be annoyed or even driven to desperation as in this case.

"SETH PARKER" is back home in Jonesport, and the Maine village that has been the locale for his famous broadcasts, is going to give one of radio's best known personalities an old-fashioned reception today.

Jonesport previously notified Phillips H. Lord that the citizenry intends to hand e the reception in a big way. First of all, the ceremonies will be broadcast over a Nation-wide hook-up at 5.30 tonight (WRC), and the blacksmith, the general storekeeper and the town band will have prominent parts in the program.

Lord is accompanied by his "Seth Parker" associates, Mrs. Lord, and his father, Dr. Albert J. Lord, of Meriden, Conn. The party left New York Wednesday and will spend ten days at Jonesport before starting a tour that will take "Seth Parker" to every corner of the United States. The tour was inspired by the success of the personal appearances here of Phillips Lord for the benefit of the Central Union Missio.i.

Jane Interprets the MODE

New York, Sept. 18.

AND now what's velvet up to? It has been predicted the velvet frocks will be all important this autumn—and they are! Because of the gracious charm of these velvet frocks, fashionwise women began to look around for other uses for velvet—and found them! And their latest discovery is velvet bags for afternoon.

These velvet bags are made, generally, in envelope style, with silver or gold monograms, and lined with exquisite printed satins. Some of these velvet bags, yielding to the temptation of adding softness of line of beauty of fabric, have puffed ends or shirred insets and incrustations. Black and brown velvet are most popular for afternoon bags—I saw a stunning one of manila brown velvet with a monogram worked in tiny, copper-tinted beads—and a black and white evening gown at one of the recent Paris collections was accompanied by a white velvet bag with a strass and onyx frame.

'N' though these bags are very lovely and quite in keeping with thetimes, be careful not to over load them! You know how velvet mars—it would be all too easy to take out a brand-new velvet bag to an afternoon party and come back with the imprint of your compact, lipstick and keys all neatly outlined on its surface! S o-o-o-o, when you buy one of these bags, be sure it has a heavy satin lining, or put in an interlining yourself. And if your bag should mar, it's a simple matter to steam it over a tea kettle and brush the nap back into place with a very soft brush while you're steaming it.

* * * *

Sports coats, my deahs, have become something to think about in these cool and colorful days! There are sports coats to wear actively, and "dress-sports-coats" for spectators. And these coats are works of brilliant art! I have sketchedone of them today, from the Maison Heim. This is of dark red corudroy, with a standing collar and large cuffs of brown astrakhan. This held snugly about the waist by a red and brown leather belt, with a square red composition buckle—'n' the skirt has an unusual line at the bottom, given by the odd incrustation which wraps around, widening as it goes, and is responsible for the ribs running horizontally at the left side of the coat skirt! These incurstations!

* * * *

Corduroy is new and-ever so smart—and never is it more appropriate than in some spectator-sports version!

Sports, in fact, are becoming more and more sparklingly colorful—at least, their trappings are! For instnce, the bag and belt illustrated above are for sports, in spite of the fact that they are made of square gold sequins! But—sh-h-h-h-h—wouldn't these sequins be too lovely on some brown afternoon frock of yourstoo?

* * * *

The Dare department of The Washington Post has had a busy week, catching stamped, self-addressed envelopes as they came in, and inserting the leaflet Dah-ray has prepared on up-to-the-minute collar and cuffs. Was your envelope among those received? If not, better hurry and send it. No woman ever had enough collars and cuffs to satisfy her feminine heart, now did she? And how could she go about acquiring them more easily than by getting this week's fascinating, illustrated leaflet?

Au revoir!

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

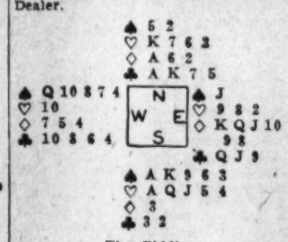
THE UNIVERSAL RECREATION.

WHILE confusion of tongues has been a fertile breeding ground of misunderstanding and conflict among nations, so much so that some students of humankind have made a lifework of the establishment of a common universal language, there is common agreement in the occupation for man's leisure hours. From the North Pole to the South and from the shores of Africa to those of Alaska, men of all races and all tongues find a common meeting place in Contract Bridge. My correspondence is peppered heavily with letters bearing the post-marks of many foreign countries—letters from India, from China, from Egypt, as well as all of Europe, and all bearing on this great intellectual recreation of civilized mankind. A recent mail brought me from Mr. Ivar Andersson, one of the noted Bridge players of Stockholm, the story of an interestingly bid and played Small Slam.

Both sides were vulnerable; North Dealer.



The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

North	East	South	West
1♣ (1)	1◇	2♣ (2)	Pass
2NT (3)	Pass	3♡	Pass
5♡ (4)	Pass	6♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

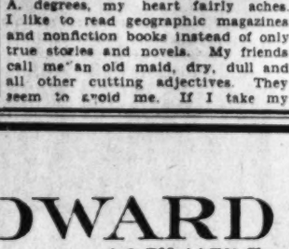
1—The Opening bid did not presage the force of the coming bidding storm.

2—With a strong two-suited hand and a bidding partner South is determined that the bidding will continue until a game contract is reached; therefore the Forcing Takeout.

3—Although North holds half honor-trick in addition to the requirement for his Opening bid when vulnerable, he gave the minimum response of two notrump because his shortness in spades and the general distribution of his hand made him fearful of any Slam try. A bid of three notrump would have been construed by South as great encouragement for such a bid, as it would have shown additional honor-tricks over those required to open the bidding.

4—North's scruples have vanished when he learns that his partner holds a two-suited hand as he holds control of both the minor suits and if South has ten cards in spades and hearts and strength enough for a Force, it would appear probable that a Small Slam can be made, the only loser being a trick in the spade or heart suit.

In the play, West opened his highest diamond in response to his partner's bid. This was won in the Dummy hand with the Ace and two rounds of trumps taken. When South found it was necessary to lead trumps three times to pick up East's last trump, he first took the precautionary measure of leading a spade, as there might be an unfavorable distribution of that suit. When the Knave fell from the East hand, the fears of an unfavorable distribution appeared to be confirmed. South now drew East's last trump and then led the three of spades; West, of course, won with the seven. West has no desirable lead. In the actual game, as reported by Mr. Anderson, he led the Queen of spades, desiring to maintain his tenace position over South's spade holding or else force the last trump from the Dummy hand. South won with the King. The hands around the table then were:



South led a club to lay the groundwork for the end play upon which his hope of success rested. North's last diamond was then led and trumped with the heart five. West was distinctly uncomfortable. He could not part with either of his spades, otherwise South would lead a spade, trump it in the North hand and establish the other in the South. So he was compelled to give up one of his clubs. South now led his remaining club, taking it with the King in Dummy and returning a small club. East ruffed with his last trump. East's Queen and West's Ten both dropped. On the twelfth round of play, South led a spade. North trumped and South discarded his losing spade on the established club.

TODAY'S POINTER.

The part-score and the rubber game have a particular fascination for many minds and even ultraconservative players are apt to come out from their hiding places when goaded by cupidity. Therefore in bidding to the part-score or in rubber game a player should not venture a bid without some leeway in case partner decides to make an unjustifiable Raise or venture a "gamble" that offers no escape if he is trapped.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

Education—or Clothes?

DEAR FRANCES McDONALD: My problem is not a problem of love, but one which is just as serious to me. I am 17 years old. My greatest desires are: To have a wonderful education, a sufficient amount of money to live comfortably and a beautiful romance, resulting in a wonderful home. My problem really is: Should I save my money and bank it or shall I spend it in an education. I have only a high school education. When I hear of people who are getting their A. B. and M. A. degrees, my heart fairly aches. I like to read geographic magazines and nonfiction books instead of only true stories and novels. My friends call me an old maid, dry, dull and all other cutting adjectives. They seem to avoid me. If I take my money for education I can not make the appearance I could otherwise, beauty treatments, clothes and the like. If I study very hard or work hard a congestion of the nose takes place which causes it to get a bit red, which is rather unattractive to say the least. Yet look what I would have if I studied for four years and then I would still be only 21. Yet to have a red nose for four years is not desirable at all.

My next question is how can I be attractive to young people. I would like to have several boy friends. I don't know what is wrong, but there is something.

Is all of this an idiotic idea of mine or is it reality. Please answer immediately. RUTH.

Go to college by all means. And if you go in for athletics as well as degrees you will be rid of that red nose, which is the result of blood rushing to the scene of excitement. See a good doctor about the nose and see a good coed college about the degrees. With education you can make back all the money you spend—and insure yourself against boredom in the future as well.

If you had no longing for study my advice would be exactly reversed, for the average girl of the day would do better to marry at the start and be done with it.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me of a good spray for a cherry tree whose leaves are being devoured by insects. STANLEY A.

Coated lead arsenate.

Please tell me the name of the inclosed blue flower. E. F. L. S.

Flower, though badly wilted, was, I feel sure, a sprig of polemonium.

Please tell me why the leaves of a variegated ivy turn brown. MRS. C. W. S.

This condition may be due to lack of moisture, too much sun or lack of root room. Any ivy, in summer, should be watered daily and kept in a place where it has only morning sun.

My Jack roses have become a tangled mass of canes. When is the best time to transplant them? I also wish to cut down my rambler roses. When shall I do this? How low shall I cut them? MRS. E. R. V.

Transplant all roses in the spring or fall, preferably fall. Prune rambler roses as soon as possible after they have finished flowering. Do not prune this season's wood so severely as last year's canes. The rambler blooms on wood made the previous season.

My two spirea bushes have been flowering for a month; the flowers are a reddish purple. Now they are fading. When they are over, will the bush require pruning? What could be planted at the bottom of a terrace to keep the soil from washing away? In the center of a terrace I have a long board one-half inch thick sunk into the grass and level with the sod to keep the soil from washing down. Could you suggest something to plant along this board? S. M. B.

You likely have an Anthony Waterer spirea, which blooms all summer. Merely remove dead flowers as they fade and do not prune bush until fall or early spring. This variety does not require severe pruning, except removing any wood that has been winter-killed in the spring. Banks can be held from erosion and a very lovely bloom effect obtained in summer by planting almost any of the recommended hardy climbers of strong growth. The individual plants should be planted in pockets of rich soil. Among the drooping roses there are none better than Max Graf, single pink, Mrs. M. H. Walsh, R. Wichuraiana or the climbing Lafayette.

Bought a pink flowering crabapple, which grows slowly and is three feet high, but has never blossomed. What do you suggest? C. L. P.

All I can suggest is for you to be patient. If your tree is only three feet high, it is likely too young a plant to bear fruit and until it sets fruit you will have no blossoms.

CAROLINA CLERIC TO LEAD REVIVALS

Rev. Marshall Mott to Begin at West Washington Baptist Oct. 4.

A noted North Carolina evangelist, the Rev. Marshall Mott, of Winston Salem, will begin a revival at the West Washington Baptist Church on October 4, to run two weeks; and after that he will preach for two weeks at the Fifth Baptist Church.

The Rev. Mott was a lawyer of marked success in his home town and State, with a brilliant career in public affairs ahead of him, when he was converted. He immediately put all of that aside, closed his office and began to preach the gospel. This was in 1925, when he was converted under the ministry of Dr. George W. Truett, of Dallas, Tex.

Within the past five years the Rev. Mott has conducted 63 revival meetings in North Carolina, ten of them in his native town, Winston Salem. He has also had the distinction of preaching in 37 different churches in his home town.

The Rev. Mott believes in the old-time religion, that God is a real person and so is the Devil, and that the latter is powerful and industrious. His preaching is said to sway people to his way of thinking, and has resulted in bringing many stray sheep into the fold.

Dr. Sizoo Will Resume Preaching Tomorrow

Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo, minister of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, has returned to Washington after a summer spent in lecturing and travel. He will conduct the morning service at 11 o'clock. This service will be broadcast over Station WOL.

Dr. Sizoo spent part of the summer in Europe studying conditions in England, France, Germany, Austria and Czechoslovakia and is planning a series of Sunday evening sermons, beginning in October, which will be based on his summer travels.

Church Will Observe "Education Sunday"

A number of the young people of the church who are attending college will be guests of honor at the Chevy Chase Baptist Church at the worship service at 11 o'clock tomorrow. It will be a feature in the observance of "Education Sunday," the purpose of which is to stress the value of a college education and to make contacts with those already in attendance at college.

Two of the college students will have part in the service. The pastor, the Rev. Edward O. Clark, will preach.

Dr. Pierce to Preach At All Souls' Tomorrow

After a summer spent in New York State and in touring the New England States and Canada, Dr. Ulysses G. B. Pierce, minister of All Souls' Church, Unitarian, will return to his pulpit tomorrow morning.

The opening session of the Church School will be held at 9:45 o'clock. A considerable number of the teachers attended the Institute of Religious Education at Star Island during the summer and careful plans have been laid for a profitable year.

Luther Place Pastor Back From Vacation

Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen, minister of Luther Place Church, has returned after a prolonged vacation. During his absence his people have laid plans for rally day in the Sunday school, which will be held on Sunday morning, October 11.

Last week twenty women of the congregation canned 168 quarts of peaches which they have stored away for distribution when winter comes. This work was done in response to a request of the women's committee on unemployment.

Dr. Harmon to Preach At Christian Church

Dr. H. H. Harmon, acting pastor of the National City Christian Church, has returned from Indianapolis and will preach at both services tomorrow. In the evening there will also be an organ recital by John B. Wilson.

Dr. W. H. Pinkerton will address the Everyman Bible Class during the Bible school period, and at the old Vermont Avenue Church a service for juniors will be conducted by Miss Ida McMillan at 11 o'clock.

Rev. Wooding Returns To Eckington Church

The Rev. Henry B. Wooding, minister of Eckington Presbyterian Church, will return to his pulpit tomorrow morning. He has spent his vacation visiting several churches he served in Illinois, and also his parents, who reside in Ottawa, Canada.

Visitation Campaign Is Planned by Church

West Washington Baptist Church has been organized by its pastor, the Rev. C. B. Austin, for an intensive and extensive campaign of visitation. Fifty members have been chosen, and have dedicated themselves to the plan, to make one visit a week for 50 weeks for the church.

Those who will be visited will not necessarily be members of the congregation, as it is hoped by this method to increase the membership and to spread the influence of the church.

Dr. Taylor to Attend Presbytery.

Potomac Presbytery will meet in the Grove Presbyterian Church in Stafford County, Va., on Monday. Central Presbyterian Church of this city will be represented by its minister, Dr. James H. Taylor, and by Elder R. P. Clarke.

The Rev. H. R. Deal to Preach.

In the absence of the pastor, the Rev. H. R. Deal will preach at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church tomorrow morning, and in the evening Dr. J. H. Balthis, the presiding elder, will conduct the service.

At Fifth Baptist Church.

Page McK. Etchison, religious work director of the Y. M. C. A., will have charge of the service Sunday evening at 8 o'clock, at the Fifth Baptist Church.

Bible School to Have Rally.

The bible school of the Ninth Street Christian Church is preparing for Rally Day, which will be held on Sunday, September 27.

EVANGELIST

THE REV. MARSHALL MOTT.

CHURCH BODY AIRS WORLD PROBLEMS

Undertone of Controversy on Divorce Marks Protestant Episcopal Session.

Denver, Sept. 18 (A.P.).—An undertone of controversy over marriage and divorce and the American Missal (mass book) prevailed as delegates to the general convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church turned their attention today to problems concurrent with the present economic situation.

"We realize now how impossible it is for us to regain prosperity as a nation while the rest of the world is prostrate. No nation can either become prosperous, nor remain so long in an international almshouse," Spencer Miller, jr., consultant on industry from West Orange, N. J., told the joint session of the house of bishops, house of deputies and women's auxiliary delegates.

Capital on Trial.

"Capitalism," said Miller, "is on trial as surely as is every other social system. Unless capitalism can devise some better means of preventing these recurring shocks to our social and economic system, mankind will press forward toward some other system that will provide the basis of an abundant life for all its citizens. Such a program will alone, avert revolution."

The task of transformation, he said, can not be achieved by anything less than the discipline of men's minds and spirits "to the kingdom of God on earth" and will involve the assertion of a Christian sociology to supplement the prevailing social standards which exalt money as the judge of human worth.

Cites Church Responsibility.

Mr. Miller said the immediate responsibility of the church was to throw the weight of moral leadership in behalf of community-wide endeavors for unemployment relief, to the end that no man who is involuntarily idle shall starve.

Meanwhile, a resolution introduced in the House of Deputies by George W. Wickersham, a lay delegate from New York, was expected to set the convention on record in regard to the American missal, mass book privately printed and distributed among members of the church.

The resolution would declare the book of common prayer to be the only "authorized" book of worship. Use of the missal is opposed by some church members, who believe its general use would "lead to Romanism." Proponents of the missal declare it is a supplement to and not a substitute for the book of common prayer.

Dr. Herbert S. Smith Returns From Vacation

Dr. Herbert Scott Smith, rector of St. Margaret's Episcopal Church, has returned from his vacation spent in Atlantic City, Maine, Boston and New York, and will preach at the 11 o'clock service tomorrow.

The Rev. Robert Shores, who is superintendent of the Sunday school, will be in the parish house at 9:30 o'clock to register pupils. The regular sessions of the school begin in October. Mr. Shores announces the following additions to the teaching staff: Miss Helen Haines, Miss Grace Fowler and Miss Margaret Tavenner.

City Presbytery Will Entertain

Presbyterian Church Give Dinners for Visitor in October.

Dr. E. Graham Wilson, general secretary of national missions; Dr. Arthur H. Limouze, secretary of promotion; Mrs. Fred S. Bennett, vice president of the board, and the Rev. Fred R. Thorne, young people's secretary, are to make a visitation of Washington City Presbytery the week of October 14-20.

The following churches will be hosts at a series of dinners: Covenant—Wednesday, October 14; Falls Church—Thursday, October 15; Gunton Temple—Friday, October 16; Eckington—Monday, October 19; Boyd's—Tuesday, October 20.

ST. STEPHEN'S OPENS SCHOOL TOMORROW

Church Auxiliary Dates Back to 1879 and Today Has Record Enrollment.

A general invitation has been extended to the young people on the "Hill" to attend the opening of the winter session of the church Sunday school of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church tomorrow morning, at 9:30 o'clock.

Dr. George Fiske Dudley, rector of the parish, believes that there never has been a time when it has been more important than at present for the children to absorb into their natures the one thing which has and will save humanity from despair and downfall—an abiding motive for right living through an abiding faith in the Heavenly Father.

The history of this school goes back over 52 years when classes were started in the old Town Hall of Mount Pleasant in 1879. There were practically no houses between Columbia road and Florida avenue then, except a few on Fourteenth street. The coming of the cable cars and the subdivision of Columbia Heights and adjacent parts started a boom which brought thousands of people up on the "Hill" and increased the church school from 25, while in the little stone church on Fourteenth street, to the largest enrollment in any Episcopal Sunday school anywhere south of the Mason-Dixon line.

Three years ago came a great forward step in the school's development when the new church and parish hall were built on the corner of Newton and Center streets, just off Sixteenth street northwest.

About the same time that definite plans had been made for the building of larger and more modern church and school facilities, the old and much beloved Church of the Incarnation, then located at the corner of Twelfth and N streets northwest, joined with St. Stephen's Parish, bringing their congregation and excellent corps of workers to augment the workers of St. Stephen's.

For the first time there were adequate accommodations for all departments, and sufficient class rooms to satisfy the needs of a school of 1,000 members.

The opening of the winter session tomorrow morning is of unusual interest to all who feel the need of good moral and spiritual training for the growing, habit-forming boy and girl.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LECTURE DELIVERED

Mrs. Ritchie Has "Religion of Results" as Topic for Address.

A lecture on "Christian Science: A Religion of Results," was delivered last evening in First Church of Christ, Scientist, by Mrs. Nelvia E. Ritchie, C. S. B., of Sewickley, Pa. Mrs. Ritchie is a member of the board of lectureship of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. She was introduced by Wilbur E. Yocum, first reader of First Church, under whose auspices the lecture was given.

The lecturer said in part:

"Christian Science teaches that the Principle of being, the first and only Cause, is God. Does it not, therefore, follow that the law governing God's perfect creation must of necessity be exact, unfailing good? Christian people whose religion is based upon the Scriptures concede that God is Life, Truth, Love, Spirit.

"In the Christian Science textbook, on page 465, to the question, 'What is God?' Mrs. Eddy answers, 'God is incorporeal, divine, supreme, infinite Mind, Spirit, Soul, Principle, Life, Truth, Love.' Words can not define God more clearly, for if we take each term, examine it carefully, we find that we have a knowable, provable God, a first Cause from which must proceed all that is real and eternal.

Record of Creation.

"In the Bible we read in the first chapter of Genesis, 'And God saw every thing that he had made, and, behold, it was very good.' Here is a complete record of creation, telling us that God made all that was made, and that He made man in His image and likeness, spiritual and perfect.

"If the creation of God is complete, spiritual, and perfect, as the Bible states, then another record of creation could not possibly change this true spiritual creation. Christian Science unfolds the great fact of spiritual existence and creation, maintaining with Biblical authority that God being infinite, all, because of His pure, spiritual nature, could not create anything unlike Himself. God could not create sin, disease, sorrow, poverty, death.

Reflect Spiritual Qualities.

"These discords are the beliefs of the carnal mind which Paul tells us 'is enmity against God.'

"Christian Science declares that since God is Spirit, spiritual man, the image and likeness of Spirit, God, forever reflects all the qualities of Spirit. These qualities can not be lost or impaired, because being spiritual and God-given they will remain perfect and indestructible throughout all time. It teaches that God, infinite ever-present good, expresses through the real man these qualities without limitation.

"As we begin to understand God in all His glory these divine qualities are expressed. To demonstrate this understanding through healing, right thinking and living is the aim and purpose of Christian Science teaching and practice."

Appearing Each Week in The Washington Post

TOMATOES APLENTY; PRESERVING IS EASY

Invaluable to Children and Adults for Their Rich Supply of Vitamins.

Tomatoes are another of the bumper crop this year and the Bureau of Home Economics of the Department of Agriculture has issued a bulletin telling how they may be utilized in low-cost diets at this time when every penny counts.

A splendid feature of tomatoes is that they can be canned and preserved with little effort.

Tomatoes are one of the best single foods for supplying vitamins A, B, C and G. This rich supply of vitamins, says the bureau, makes them almost invaluable to both children and adults, since it helps materially to prevent deficiency diseases and infections of the skin and mucous membranes, to maintain normal growth, and to stimulate the appetite. Tomatoes are rich also in the mineral salts essential for good nutrition.

The bureau includes tomatoes in all its low-cost dietaries, primarily because of their vitamin C content. They are especially valuable as a source of this unstable vitamin, since people so frequently eat them raw or lightly cooked. And even when canned or cooked for longer periods, their acid reaction tends to prevent destruction of this vitamin.

Makes Dishes Enjoyable.

Tomatoes add interest, color and flavor to low-cost diets. A few cents spent for tomatoes may make a dull unpalatable dish enjoyable. Tomatoes are low in price this year, because of the large crop.

Tomatoes lend themselves to an almost unlimited variety of combinations in cooking. They mix well with other vegetables, meat, fish, cheese, legumes, spaghetti or eggs. In fact, in various forms, they can take their place in any course of a meal, beginning with the tomato juice cocktail and going through the soup, entree, vegetable, relish, salad and ending with the dessert, which might be green tomato pie.

Stewed Green Tomatoes.

8 large green tomatoes
1½ teaspoons salt
Pinch of pepper
2 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons sugar
4 tablespoons bread crumbs
Scraped onion for seasoning

Scald the tomatoes and remove the skins. Cut into small pieces, boil until tender, season, and thicken with bread crumbs which have been browned in the butter.

Stewed Tomatoes, Celery or Cabbage.

1 quart canned tomatoes
2 cups celery or cabbage
1½ teaspoons salt
2 tablespoons butter or other fat

Simmer the tomatoes and the celery together for 20 minutes, or until the celery is tender. Season with salt and fat and serve. This is an excellent way to use stalks of celery that are undesirable for serving raw. Or, after the tomatoes have cooked alone for about 15 minutes, add finely shredded cabbage instead of the celery. Cook the tomatoes and cabbage together for from 5 to 10 minutes, add the seasoning, and serve at once.

Piccalilli.

2 gallons green tomatoes
2 or 3 green sweet peppers
2 hot peppers
1 quart onions
3 quarts vinegar
4 cups sugar
1 teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons mustard (seed or ground)
1 cup horseradish (grated)

Chop tomatoes or slice in ½-inch slices. Soak chopped tomatoes and chopped onions and peppers overnight in one pint salt and enough water to cover. Drain thoroughly. Mix sugar, spices, vinegar. Heat vegetables in mixture until tender, not reaching boiling temperature.

Note—Onions may be omitted.

Catsup.

3 medium-sized onions, sliced
2 large sweet red peppers, sliced and seed removed
1 cup vinegar
¾ cup sugar
2 teaspoons ground paprika
¾ teaspoon ground mustard
¾ teaspoon celery seed
3 teaspoons salt
½ tablespoon whole allspice
½ tablespoon whole cloves
3 pieces stick cinnamon 2 inches long.

Cook the tomatoes, onions, and peppers about 30 minutes, then press through a fine sieve. The pulp will be thin and watery, so cook again until somewhat thickened. Add the vinegar, sugar, paprika, mustard, celery seed, and salt. Tie the spices in a cheesecloth bag, and cook the mixture, stirring frequently until the right consistency. Fill sterilized bottles with the catsup, use new cork stoppers, and then dip the bottle tops into paraffin or sealing wax. Store in a dark cool place. This quantity of tomatoes will yield from 1 to 2 quarts of catsup.

Recipe for Butterscotch Cookies Wins Post Prize

MRS. LOUISE WOOD, of 2518 Seventeenth street northwest, winner of this week's $5 prize for the best recipe, is shown here in the kitchen of her home.

Mrs. Louise Wood Tells How to Prepare Cakes for Iced Coffee.

A tasty recipe for butterscotch cookies takes the $5 prize this week. Mrs. Louise Wood, of 2518 Seventeenth street northwest, is the recipient. Her recipe calls for brown sugar, butter, eggs, vanilla and flour.

The cookies are not difficult to make and readers with but little experience in the kitchen should be able to make a fair success at them on the first trial.

These cookies go very well served with iced coffee and Mrs. Wood appends a recipe for making a very delicious iced form of that beverage.

The receipes follow:

2 cups brown sugar creamed with ½ cup Sanitary butter
Add 2 eggs well beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 cups Washington Self-Rising Flour.

Mix and put in roll. Let stand a few hours in cool place or overnight. Slice and bake in moderate oven.

Iced Coffee.

6 heaping teaspoons Swing's Java Mocha Coffee
2 pints of water

Percolate the coffee and water. Strain the coffee and add ¾ of a cupful of Sealect milk. Sweeten to taste. Then chill and serve.

String-Bean Salad.

String beans, boiled until tender and then chilled until crisp, taste all the better when they are flavored with a little onion

MEN ARE ELIGIBLE IN RECIPE CONTEST

One Writes In Asking if in Cooking He Can Compete With Women.

"Can a man join the $5 prize contest of the Saturday Food Page?" writes in one with a flair for cooking.

Of course he may. And if his recipes are better than those selected by women, he may even win a prize. However, we find the great bulk of recipes are sent in by women in the contest. After all, the cooking and providing of health-building foods are preeminently women's task.

The care which women are taking to feed their families correctly and appetizingly is shown in the recipes pouring into the Food Editor's desk. Women are making a study of this question. That is one of the reasons why this Food Page is so helpful to them.

Many women write, too, as did this one: "It helps us so much to have the merchants advertise the suggestions they do for our menus. Every Saturday I look over your page for hints on what to have for our Sunday dinner. The other members of the family may have the rest of the Saturday Post so long as they leave me in peace with the Food Page."

ROADHOUSE OWNER FINED ON 2 COUNTS

Blue Law Invoked in Prince Georges Case; Keeping Disorderly House Alleged.

George M. Aiken, colored, of Oxon Hill, Md., yesterday testified in the County Police Court that he thought it a "good record," since he had run a roadhouse in Prince Georges County for four months and had only been in court once before.

In spite of the opinion, he was fined $50 for keeping a disorderly house and was assessed an added $50 fine under the old Blue law ruling that a "dancing salon" shall not be open on Sunday. Aiken declared he sold no liquor at his place and that all disturbance was caused by persons who came there drunk. They were local people, he said, explaining that "Maryland people drink different from what people should," as they drink a lot all at once and then go out and create a disturbance.

Another case under the blue law, which was scheduled to be tried yesterday in Marlboro against Harold Denyer, of Oxon Hill, was not heard, as Thomas Stubblefield, the complainant, asked to have the warrant withdrawn. Denyer was charged with working on a house on Sunday.

Conviction on a charge of possessing two half-gallons of liquor brought a fine of $75 to Edgar F. Duncan, of Washington. Through her attorney, Robert W. McCullough, Jean Cummings, of Bladensburg, withdrew an appeal on a liquor conviction and paid a fine of $125.

Raymond Stewart, colored, of Washington, was acquitted on charges of driving while drunk and reckless driving when the arresting policeman testified that he had found no evidence against Stewart. The man was committed to jail after a motorcycle accident on the Southern Maryland pike in which Susie Thompson, colored, was killed.

Somerset Man Arrested On Assault Charge

Richard Hardy, 80 years old, of Dorset avenue Somerset, Md., has been released on bond of $500 to appear in Montgomery County Police Court, September 28, to answer charges of assault with dangerous weapon. He was arrested by Policeman Roy Davis on a warrant sworn out by Ernest Whitman, of Washington, before Justice of the Peace A. L. Moore, of Bethesda, Md.

Hardy is alleged to have fired a shot at Whitman last week when the latter was parked in a car in front of the Hardy home with Hardy's daughter. Hardy told Policeman Davis that he did not like Whitman but denied he had fired a shot at him.

STOCK MARKET HIT BY RECORD LOSSES

The net loss in stocks, according to the Standard Statistics-Associated Press composite for 90 issues, was 4.6 points, the largest since July 7, and trading reached 2,807,550 shares, not much under the total for the same date.

Pessimism, gaining weight like a rolling snowball, brought out heavy offerings of the country's best known equity issues and sent foreign bonds into a tailspin, although many domestics were not far behind. Obviously, concern over European affairs had much to do with the general weakness. Considerable selling was reported from abroad; London, Paris and Berlin markets spent a gloomy day, this giving the New York Exchange no encouragement for a continuation of the Thursday rally.

British News Depresses.

Overnight London dispatches telling of fears in British banking circles that a general election might have serious effects on the pound helped give the local market a poor start. Softening exchange rates, especially on sterling, told of the movement of balances to other centers, presumably Switzerland and Holland, since those rates established new highs.

A wide break in American Telephone to the lowest since 1926 upset sentiment and was followed by extensions of early declines in other quarters and an increased" volume. The pace quieted around midafternoon, only to accelerate sharply toward the close when the pressure to sell became much more acute and final prices were the lowest. Net losses in most principal shares ranged from 2 to nearly 10 points.

Telephone's decline, amounting to 6½ net, was accompanied by a slump in shares of Sun Life Assurance of Canada, the largest individual holder of that utility, and also an important owner of other American common stocks.

Industrials Join Losses.

Consolidated Gas, Western Union, North American, U. S. Steel, Westinghouse, Sears Roebuck, National Biscuit, Case, Loew's, Woolworth, New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Southern Pacific and Union Carbide lost 2¾ to nearly 4 net.

Union Pacific closed 9¾ lower and Atchison 6½. Eastman and American Tobacco "B" closed in the neighborhood of 6 points lower, American Can was down 4¾ and Allied Chemical 5. General Motors' drop was marked by a 20,000-share block, the day's largest sale, and the stock lost 2½ net.

Grains were unable wholly to resist the trend, although they held up fairly well. Wheat, affected by bearish Canadian estimates, a weak cash demand and the stock market, closed unchanged to a cent off.

Small Corn Loss.

Small changes in corn, mostly small losses, mirrored rains in Iowa and bearish Argentine reports. Cotton sagged to new lows, although final losses were held to 14 to 16 point range.

Weekly trade reviews reported that recurrent weakness in commodity prices had caused some unsettlement and that the warm weather had held back retail sales. "Still," said Dun's, "a considerable volume of business is being transacted, and reports indicated that the distribution of merchandise reached fairly large proportions this week. Retail trade at the lower level of prices now prevailing continues to enlarge as the fall season advances."

Sterling cables closed at $4.83¾, the lowest in several weeks, and 3-16 off on the day. French francs sagged a similar amount. The Canadian dollar broke to 98.25, the lowest since November, 1929, extending its discount to 1¾ cents, but made some recovery.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Sept. 18 (A.P.).—Stubborn rear-guard fighting saved the grain markets today from any general retreat as a result of bearish action of securities. Deferred deliveries both of wheat and corn succumbed to pessimism engendered by sharp breaks in stocks, but speculative buying of September grain contracts against equal sales of contracts for more distant months served to put relative firmness into cereals. Enlarged shipping demand for corn was in evidence, and there were advices that importing countries were paying good premiums for high grade wheat, a kind difficult to obtain the next three and a half months except in North America.

Wheat closed nervous, unchanged to 1¼ cents lower; corn at ½ decline to ¼ advance; oats unchanged to ⅜ off, and provisions unchanged to 20 cents down.

Fortified by "spreading" transactions, September wheat gained on December, and at one stage rose to the best figures since August 15. Comparative strength of September corn was associated with purchases of 230,000 bushels of cash corn and with vessel charters taken for 400,000 bushels of corn to go east from Chicago. Meanwhile, holders of deferred deliveries of wheat and corn resisted as best they could the influence of extreme weakness of stocks, and kept cereal prices temporarily from more than fractional declines.

Toward the end of the day, however, buying support for grains was less aggressive, and prices of deliveries other than September gave way gradually under increased selling pressure as stocks continued to plunge lower. Fresh export demand for North American wheat was of a disappointing volume, and notice was taken of Liverpool dispatches telling of enlarged receipts of wheat there and of increased warehouse stocks, with very slow call from millers. Dry and hot weather continued in Kansas, a circumstance pointing to decreased acreage, but on the other hand good rains in central Nebraska were construed as a handicap to wheat bulls.

Provisions sagged owing to liquidating sales.

BONDS AGAIN SLUMP IN HEAVIER SELLING

Liquidation Forces Prices to New Low Records; Sales $15,602,000.

New York, Sept. 18 (A.P.).—Heavy liquidation forced the bond market to new low records today. Sales on the stock exchange aggregated $15,602,000, the largest total for a full session this year. The previous record for activity this year was $15,150,000 on April 1.

The average price for 60 leading issues consisting of equal numbers of rail, public utility and industrial bonds dropped to the lowest level in five years at 87.8 with a net loss of nine tenths of a point, the largest loss this year.

Notwithstanding the weakness in domestic loans some of the most striking losses appeared among foreign bonds. United Kingdom of Great Britain & Ireland 5½s of 1937 hit a new low at 101 and closed 3½ points off, an unusual loss for this issue, on an extraordinarily heavy volume. French 7s of 1949 reached a new bottom at 116½ on steady selling. Both of these bonds enjoy high credit rating and have been steady heretofore when other foreign issues were depressed.

Wide losses were scattered among other foreign issues, especially loans of Argentina, Poland, Germany and Australia.

The commonest explanation of this weakness was selling induced by fear of future developments, particularly in Europe.

The downward trend appeared among domestic corporate bonds too, but the losses on the whole were not so large as in the foreign group. The movement was not concentrated, as has happened frequently heretofore, in the more speculative issues. New low prices were recorded by such high grade obligations as American Telephone 4½s of 1939, Atchison General 4s, Pennsylvania Power & Light 4½s of 1981 and Western Union 5s of 1960 and of 1961.

Even Liberty and United States Treasury Loans eased off after early strength but the volume was not particularly heavy.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

WHAT IS THE BEST MALARIA METHOD?

FOR 30 years the Italian government has been driving against malaria. They have nearly 50,000,000 people living under very crowded conditions. Their highlands are entirely mountainous and unfit for agriculture, or else the soil has been worn out by thousands of years of cultivation.

Their lowlands are fertile, but the people were not able to use them profitably because of malaria. The vitality of the Italian people could not withstand the racial degradation which malaria brings about. The imperial city was surrounded by the richest land, but so bad was malaria that they were compelled to get their milk from Milan and their vegetables from Naples.

The government began by taking over the manufacture and sale of quinine. They sold it at a ridiculously low price, but they made enough profit to provide a fair malaria control fund. Supplying cheap quinine and compelling the people to use it, converted the Italian malaria into a mild disease, but did not lessen its prevalence. With the coming into power of Mussolini the malaria campaign became militant. The type of work to be accomplished is cut to fit the circumstances, but whatever is decided to be best is done.

In certain areas larvicide is used; in others screening. In places the use of top minnows gives the best results: in others, the country is converted into a stock and dairy district. Certain lowlands are filled up by damming the streams and forcing them to overflow. The silt deposited by the overflowed water fills up ponds and raises the ground level enough to make it drain. Incidentally, the soil is freshened and made more fertile. A German observer, who recently explored the Mississippi from its mouth to its source, criticized the American Government for not forcing the Mississippi to overflow periodically. He praised the Hollanders for the reclamation of millions of acres from the sea. Dr. L. W. Hackett, writing of the Italian program in the Southern Medical Journal, says: "All in all, the Italians have wrested and withheld more land from the domination of the waters than the Dutch."

In other places the Italians are doing major drainage. Where mosquitoes were breeding in stagnant, warm waters they have sometimes killed them off by diverting streams of cold running water into the stagnant ponds. In other cases where mosquitoes were breeding in cooler waters they have killed them off by stagnating the water and causing it to become warm.

Whatever method seemed best in a particular location was adapted for that enterprise. Most of the work is done by the government, but under the law the cost is assessed against the property. The special tax may be levied for a term of years, but eventually the government gets back its investment. The land owner gets his money out of the increased value of his land and the greater efficiency of labor.

Bees Fly 75,000 Miles For Pound of Honey

St. Louis (U.P.).—A one pound square of honey nominally sells for 25 cents. Bees fly between 50,000 and 75,000 miles to gather that amount, according to Dr. William C. Wilson, on whose three farms 6,000,000 bees dwell.

Fifth Avenue Fashions

CUTEST EVER!

A bolero type with tiny little jacket finishes its edge with modish pleated ruffling. In a similar fashion, ruffling marks the smooth fit through the hips, that gives it such a grown-up air. The open neckline with scalloped collar is smart and comfy, too. The puffed sleeves are darling of the mode.

Style No. 245 may be had in sizes 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 8 requires 2½ yards of 39-inch material with ¼ yard of 39-inch contrasting and 1 yard of ribbon.

Sarazen Bows In Upset in Semifinal

Albany Boy Provides Feature by Rallying for 5 and 3 Win.

By BILL KING.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 18 (A.P.).—The mortality rate of professional golf champions jumped again today as Densmore Shute, the "giant-killer," from Hudson, Ohio, scalped Billy Burke, American open titlist, with his deadly putter.

Denny used this same weapon yesterday on the internationally famous Tommy Armour and that British open ruler and defending champion in the current title play on the breezy Wannamoisett course was swept into the P. G. A. tourney's discard. Shute toppled Armour in the quarter-final match by 3 and 1 and the owner of the American open crown was overcome by a single hole in a 36-hole semifinal match.

Shute and Creavy To Clash.

Burke's overthrow placed Shute into tomorrow's final round against Tom Creavy, of Albany, N. Y., who qualified by trouncing Gene Sarazen, twice a P. G. A. winner and runner-up to Armour last year, by the surprising margin of 5 and 3. This championship play, due to start at 10 a. m. and go over the 36-hole route, will be refereed by the great Bobby Jones, himself.

Creavy, making his first real bid for golfing fame, was unbeatable against Sarazen after recovering from slightly wobbly start, which enabled Gene to gain a two-hole lead. This advantage disappeared as Creavy, out in 37, shared birdie after birdie and came home in the morning with a 33, two under par, for a regulation round of 70. This superb play gave him a three-hole advantage on Sarazen, was carded 74, and from then on that veteran was never in a position to make up any of his deficit.

Creavy, only able to finish about thirtieth in the recent open title play at Toledo, was always straight and far from tee to green and decidedly accurate on the putting surfaces. Sarazen, medalist and outstanding match player on the previous days, showed nothing any time this week to compare with the Albany boy's perfect game.

Londos Wins Again; Ray Steele Victim

Philadelphia, Sept. 18 (A.P.).—Jim Londos, of St. Louis, defended his heavyweight wrestling title, recognized in only part of the States, by tossing Ray Steele, of California, tonight. He finished the challenger in 48 minutes 49 seconds with a reverse leg and toe hold.

Both men used a varied line of holds and did considerable boxing. Steele appeared to have the edge during the early part of the match and bumped his opponent on the floor frequently. Steele appeared on the verge of victory two minutes before the final fall.

In the semiwind up, Rudy Dusek, Omaha, tussled 45 minutes with George Zaharias, Colorado, to win a decision.

the recent Gold Cup regatta, to take its place on the starting line this afternoon for the final two heats. Kleisrath and his mechanic caught the full fury of water that spouted through the hole in the hull, and in the face of the hard-hitting spray stuck it out to the finish in order to retain a chance to compete in the final heats.

Washington went nautical for the day. The greatest fleet of boats ever to grace the Potomac provided points of vantage ranging from the three-masted full rigged auxiliary schooner, Seven Seas, owned by Ingilis M. Uppercu, wealthy New York sportsman, to the flotilla of rowboats, canoes, pert little outboards and even a gondola that had left its home port in the Tidal Basin for the day.

Six boats from the Coast Guard, under the direction of Commander C. H Jones, patrolled the course, serving as the outposts, the officials' craft and carrying first aid equipment which except for hurried excursions to three capsized outboards, was not needed.

Commodores were a dime a dozen, at least commodore caps were, and each of the hundreds of craft that lined the narrow lane of the course found opportunity to display their very best bunting which requires slight provocation on the part of a yachting master. Other yachts were anchored along the north shore of the branch and off the Corinthian Yacht Club, cosponsor of the regatta with the Chesapeake & Potomac Power Boat Association.

Fans Find Many Vantage Points.

The landlubbers found points of vantage along the War College wall, and along the north bank of the branch from the Corinthian Club to the Navy Yard, a matter of 2 miles, from Hains' Point and along the southern bank at Bolling Field and the Naval Air Station.

The field of seven in the President's Cup race was out a half hour before starting time, warming their oil and breaking in highly tuned motors until five minutes before the start of the race, when they casually putted a few hundred yards from the starting line to await the official cannon that was to send them on their way in the first heat of the feature race of the regatta.

Thirty seconds to go and the field was assembled a quarter of a mile above the line as pilots watched the big clock on the Coast Guard's Boutwell, posted on the start. As the hands ticked off the seconds the field neared the starting point and with a thunder-clapping roar opened throttles wide 100 yards from the start as the clock showed 5 seconds more.

Hotsy Totsy Gets Away First.

It was a rousing start, none beating the gun and none left, but Kleisrath got the jump with the Hotsy Totsy and forged first across the line, a scant two yards ahead of the Louisa with Californian and Miss Philadelphian bunched in a group and the remainder of the field in the second flight only a few yards back.

Taking advantage of his start and seeking to avoid the wash, Kleisrath shot Hotsy Totsy away from his closest challengers before they had traversed 200 yards and he made the first turn of the two and a half mile lap in fine fashion. The El Largarto overtook the others on the run down to the far turn but Hotsy Totsy lost no ground in the dash back to the starting boat and finished the first lap with a 20-yard advantage over El

TIGERS FACE BROWN IN FINALE

Hogsett or Uhle Will Hurl for Harris; Weaver Here.

BUCKY HARRIS and his Tigers end their season against the Nationals here this afternoon in a game which carries with it the series edge, although on season's play the Nats have quite an advantage, having won fourteen of twenty. Manager Walter Johnson last night was undecided about his pitching selection, but probably will call on Lefty Lloyd Brown. Either Elon Hogsett, the southpaw Cherokee Indian, or the veteran George Uhle will draw the allen mound assignment.

President Clark Griffith withheld decision on the salary status of Ad Liska yesterday. Liska gave a pitching exhibition in batting practice to prove his sore arm has recovered, but Griffith pronounced the workout "only fair." Liska seeks full pay for the rest of the season while Griffith has demanded that the pitcher demonstrate that his arm again is in condition.

Chisox Rise to Occasion To Protect Eighth Place With Artistic 3-1 Defeat

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 18.—The White Sox forged further to the rear today in their sensational last-minute fight for eighth place, losing to the Athletics with such artistic ease that they seem certain to blow both games of Saturday's double-header and leave town with a clean sweep of the series.

The miracle team of modern times which has come from in front to dislodge the Boston Red Sox in a never-say-live campaign for the lowest position in the league today showed the stuff it takes to lose under difficulties. Connie Mack seemed determined to give them a special struggle when he sent out a team largely composed of substitutes, but they met his challenge calmly and there was only one moment, early in the game, when they were in danger of winning. That was when Billy Sullivan, jr., popped a home run over the right field wall for their only run of a 3-to-1 score.

Although the ball crossed the wall at least 50 feet inside the white stripe, the betting contingent who had taken a long price on the White Sox to lose, set up a yell of "foul, foul." But Bill Dineen, the umpire behind the plate, was on the play and he fearlessly called the hit fair.

The swift, downward climb of the miracle team naturally has called for special precautions to prevent the foul breath of scandal from gnawing at the eaucheon of the national pastime. There have been bold rumors that Max (Boo Boo) Huff the celebrated sinister character of Philadelphia through his agents in the prohibition department, has been trying to kidnap one young man in the White Sox infield, and hold him until the season is over to protect a big bet on the Red Sox to finish eighth. This young man has been a tower of weakness on the present trip and detectives have been assigned to guard him and keep intact the great infield combination which has established modern record for two-base errors.

Mr. Hoff indignantly denied these reports, stating that in the first place, he always wagered on the White Sox to lose and adding: "Anyway, there are some things I wouldn't do even for money, and you can say for me that I have too fine a sense of art to interfere with the most perfect combination I have ever seen on a ball field. I have sat fascinated many a time, watching the swift, sure ease of those errors out there, converting certain double plays into extra bases and you can tell the young man that he is safe as far as I am concerned.

The attendance along the path of great advance to the rear continues consistent with the historic character of the attraction and the boys might score a shutout at the turnstiles yet if the close of the season were not close at hand. Today, however, the attendance went up a few customers, with almost 1,000 on hand and the ticket choppers on the turnstiles were inclined to be impatient toward the public.

Babe Ruth Hits No. 43 and Lazzeri Clouts Circuit Drive.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18 (A.P.).—The big bats of Tony Lazzeri and Babe Ruth were active today as the Yankees won their seventh straight victory at the expense of the St. Louis Browns, 14 to 4.

Lazzeri led the assault on three visiting hurlers with a home run, a double and single, while Ruth chimed in with his forty-third home run of the year, leaving him only one behind

Dempsey to Start Work For Major Bout, Is Report

BOISE, Idaho, Sept. 18 (U.P.).—The Boise Capital News said today that Jack Dempsey had decided to cancel all tentative exhibition bout dates and to undertake immediately an intensive training campaign preparatory to a major heavyweight bout within the next few months.

Dempsey fought seven rounds last night before a crowd of 6,000. Afterward, the newspaper said, he definitely announced he would try to regain the heavyweight title.

The former champion plans to return to his home State, Utah, and work in the coal mines. All negotiations for exhibitions were called off after the fight card last night.

Dempsey is quietly confident he is capable of fighting his way back to the title. His exhibition bouts have given him confidence in his stamina.

Grove Scores 30th Win to Set Mark

Is First Southpaw in Modern History to Gain Distinction.

First Since Bagby to Reach 30 Mark in One Season.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 18 (A.P.).—Lefty Grove hurled the world's champion Athletics to a 3 to 1 victory over the Chicago White Sox today and won his thirtieth game of the season against three defeats.

Grove's own single in the third inning started him on his way to victory. His hit was followed by doubles by Moore and Simmons that provided two runs and enough to win. Grove fanned six of the Sox and allowed only five hits.

Robert Moses Grove is the first southpaw twirler in the American League and the only one of the current century in either major circuit to achieve 30 victories in one season. He is the first pitcher, either right or left handed, to reach this high mark since 1920, when Sergt. Jim Bagby won 31 for Cleveland, then champions of the American League.

Baldwin Won 42 In 1886.

Back in the old days, the "iron man" stunt was recorded by several southpaws. The major league record, so far as the books indicate, was 42 victories by Charles (Lady) Baldwin, of the Detroit National League Club in 1886.

Another National League southpaw, Frank Killen of Pittsburgh, gained more than 30 victories in 1893 and 1893. Other famous left-handers of National League history were Matt Kilroy, of Baltimore, and "Toad" Ramsey, of Louisville, hurling stars in the 80s.

Grove now has a major league record of 145 victories and only 60 defeats. He won 20 or more games in each of his previous four seasons with the Athletics, reaching his own high mark of 28 last year.

The great southpaw tied the American League record of 16 consecutive victories this year. He has been defeated only three times, once each by Washington, Chicago and St. Louis. His present winning percentage of .909 will set a major league record, if he maintains it with only a week to go.

Herman and Mungo Star; Robins Win, 3-2

Chicago, Sept. 18 (A.P.).—Babe Herman, slugging outfielder, and Van Mungo, rookie righthander, combined to give the Brooklyn Robins a 3-to-2 victory over the Cubs today, breaking the locals' eight-game winning streak.

Herman batted in all the Robins' runs off Charlie Root with a home run and a single, while Mungo held the Cubs to eight hits.

4-3 Triumph Matches Win Of Yanks

Manush Scores After Opening Last Inning With Single.

Marberry Sees Nats Wipe Out Tigers' 3-Run Lead.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

EARL (DAPPER DAN) WHITEHILL, Tiger southpaw, lost a tough decision to the Nationals yesterday when he was beaten in the twelfth inning, 4 to 3, after having held Johnson's crew to but eight hits. He has no one but himself to blame, however, for it was a wild pitch which he uncorked which let Manush bring home the game-ending run. And this was badly needed, for the home victory which it made enabled the Nats to retain their second-place tie with the New York Yankees, who also won.

Manush opened this third extra frame with a single and was advanced on a nice sacrifice by Gill. Cronin was intentionally walked, putting it up to Kuhel, but his best was a force play at second, on which Manush advanced to third. Johnson then nominated Dave Harris to hit for Bluege. Whitehill wanted to intentionally walk the Greensboro sheriff, but Skipper Bucky Harris ordered him to pitch to him and it was while he was bearing down that he uncorked his wild pitch

Decision Helps Tigers.

But for what looked to be a faulty decision by Umpire Brick Owens, behind the plate, the Nats would have won in regulation time, 3 to 2. With two strikes on Johnson in the eighth, he swung his bat clear over the plate, but the umpire refused to call it a third strike. Had he done so, Gehringer's strikeout, which followed would have ended the round. Johnson finally walked, however, stole second and carried on the third when Cronin failed to cover and registered on Stone's triple to left-center. This run tied the string at 3-all.

It was a peculiar game and reminded one of opening a bottle of olives—after getting the first one out, the rest came quite easily. For five innings Fred Marberry and Whitehill, both of whom went the route, staged a pretty mound duel. In the sixth the Nats, who had been credited with but one hit, a double by Kuhel in the second, suddenly came to life and broke the ice. The round netted them a trio of runs.

With one out, Myer beat out a bunt, Rice walked, Manush singled Myer home and another runner checked in on Gill's bunt between first and second. After Cronin flied out, Kuhel singled Manush in and Richardson killed the rally by making a sensational diving catch of Bluege's liner.

Detroit Scores Twice.

In the very next frame the Tigers scored twice. Successive opening singles by Stone, Alexander and G. Walker netted one run and had Marberry in quite a hole and the other trickled over the plate on Richardson's tap to Kuhel. As already mentioned, the aliens knotted the string in the eighth, thanks to a little help from Umpire Owens, and then came a flock of scoreless sessions until Whitehill wild-pitched the game to the Nats.

The Tigers made no serious threats in the later frames, but the residents "blew" chances in both the tenth and eleventh. In the first extra frame Gill doubled with two gone, Cronin was purposely walked and Kuhel walked against Whitehill's will, filling the bases. Bluege popped to Rogell, however.

In the next frame Spencer coaxed a free ticket to first as a starter and West ran for him. Marberry's sacrifice bunt was a perfect one, and West was in position to score on a single. The Nats did not come close to getting one, though, for Myer fouled to Alexander and Rice rolled to Rogell.

Washington's eight hits were credited to four players, Myer, Manush, Gill and Kuhel getting two each, with Stone and Rogell being credited with three each of the eleven garnered by the Tigers. Richardson's hit-robbing dive of Bluege's liner in the sixth and Gill's grab of G. Walker's liner in the eleventh were the fielding high lights.

TOP FLIGHT RATED 4-TO-5 FAVORITE IN RICH FUTURITY TODAY

Leading 1931 Juveniles Entered

Morfair and Tick On Rated Contenders in Contest.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18 (A.P.).—Thirteen 2-year-olds, the survivors of an original entry of $2,139, today were named to answer the bugle call for the forty-second running of the $125,000 Futurity at Belmont Park tomorrow.

Although the winner's share of the purse will not equal the $105,730 won by the late Harry Payne Whitney's Whichone two years ago, the owner of the colt or filly that leads the pack down the Widener straight-away will receive close to $100,000—one of the richest awards of turf history.

The field of thirteen, although smaller than expected, includes practically every outstanding juvenile in training. The number may be reduced by one or two, depending on track conditions, by the time Starter George Cassidy releases the barrier.

C. V. Whitney's Top Flight is the only filly that will contest the issue over the 6½ furlongs, but tonight the bookmakers considered this unbeaten 2-year-old a 4 to 5 favorite. Sonny Workman will be in the saddle.

At least two of the other entries—Victor Emanuel's Morfair and Mrs. Louis G. Kaufman's Tick On—will be well supported, while W. R. Coe and Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree Stable have named strong combinations.

The Futurity tops a card that will see Twenty Grand opposed by only two horses in the $10,000 added Jockey Club Gold Cup and the thirty-first running of the $25,000 Grand National Steeplechase Handicap with eight starters.

Twenty Grand a good thing even at 1 to 50, will have E. R. Bradley's Barometer and the Wheatley Stable's Blenheim as his rivals over the 2-mile route of the Cup

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

—Lincoln Fields Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

LINCOLN FIELDS, Chicago, Sept. 18.—Juveniles will hold the spotlight on the Lincoln Fields program tomorrow with the Dearborn Handicap, a 6-furlong test, as the stellar attraction on a highly interesting week-end card. This feature, which carries a $5,000 added purse value, received a list of ten leading 2-year-olds in the overnight entries.

LIBERTY LIMITED, highly regarded juvenile from the Three D's Stable, with top impost of 119 pounds, will encounter stern opposition from the rest of the field. Despite his assignment, the colt is favored to annex the honors. PRINCESS CAMELIA, sporting the Leiter silks, has trained briskly with this fixture in view, and with a nine-pound advantage should extend the top selection. COLONIAL BELLE, SHARP THOUGHTS and OH DAVE should be the outstanding possibilities.

FIRST RACE—A limited field of maiden 2-year-olds have been entered in this heat, with K. RUSSELL selected to graduate. The Goldblatt youngster has shown steady improvement and should be hard to beat. BEAVER did not favor the muddy track last start, but over the drying-out strip should go well. HOOSIER PRINCE turned in two nice efforts and may share the purse.

SECOND RACE—LAMP BLACK appears well placed in the 6-furlong dash, with HAMILTON favored to force the pace. The latter turned in a splendid victory in his previous outing. THE SOUTHERNER has been route racing and may find the distance a trifle short.

THIRD RACE—C. V. Whitney's ANGRY should hold his five rivals safe in this number. BILL LOONEY, improved racer from the McFadden string, appears the contender, with WEIDELEEN as the show choice.

FOURTH RACE—Nine evenly matched platers will face the barrier to contest the purse at the mile route. BARNEY SEXTON has displayed speed at the distance and on his recent second to Silver Lake should take down the purse. SUITOR showed a splendid effort in scoring last outing and will offer stern opposition. FINNIC is favored for the minor award.

SIXTH RACE—Only seven have been named in this mile and a sixteenth gallop, with DUNMORE given the call. The Everglade Stable's oldster has raced well over a slow track and at the distance should score. WIRT G. BOWMAN appears next best with GO TO IT favored for the show.

SEVENTH RACE—AREGAL, far down on the list, has the speed of the group of claimers, and if the Allemeur gelding faces the barrier, should account for the major portion of the purse. DELMONICO has turned in some fair efforts over this track and is given the place call. SEARINGTON is favored by the conditions and should battle it out with the top two. PLAY BALL and COPPERFIELD are possibilities.

*Field.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LAZY MARY, $6.32, $3.32, $2.36; BRUSH DOWN, $7.52, $4.64; PEAL, $4.34.

LAZY MARY met with some interference in the early runnings, but came fast on the outside after entering the stretch and wore down BRUSH DOWN in the last eighth to win under urging. BRUSH DOWN came gamely to take the lead briefly in the last furlong, but could not resist challenge of winner. PEAL had the most early speed and opened up a gap in the early runnings, but tired badly after reaching stretch. WORLDLY LAD dropped back after the start, but was going well at the finish. DON'T TOUCH tired after reaching a contending position at stretch turn. JUST ORMONT was shuffled back at the start and made up much ground. FRENCH WENCH, STRATHCONA and WISE ADVOCATE stopped badly.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:45. Off at 2:47. Winner, M. Goldblatt's blk. c. (3), by Lee O. Cotner—Frivol. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24, 0:48, 1:16 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FUDGE, $10.80, $6.90, $5.10; GETTIN EVEN, $13.32, $11.42; JUSTINA, $5.48.

FUDGE ran well, took a short lead after going a quarter and, responding gamely to punishment, held GETTIN EVEN in a hard stretch drive. GETTIN EVEN was close up at all stages and, racing in courageous fashion to the finish, barely missed. JUSTINA made up ground to best BROOMSHOT. Latter had early speed and held on fairly well. NUSAKAN met with some interference and pulled up slightly lame.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300; allowances. The South Bend Purse. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:16. Off at 3:17½. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SIR MELTON, $6.38, $3.74, $2.84; MARSE ROBERT, $4.82, $3.38; PENDING, $3.32.

SIR MELTON went to the front at the start and, showing a liking for the going, drew away from his opposition in the last quarter to win easily. MARSE ROBERT could not keep up in the early running, but was the same finish to best PENDING. Latter dashed into contention after the start and remained close to the pace thereafter. LEJOY dropped back after breaking well, but came again in the stretch. BRYONIA tired. CHEPERA stopped badly.

FOURTH RACE—One mile (out of chute). Purse, $1,300; claiming. Elgin Purse. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:46. Off at 3:46½. Winner, Mrs. R. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GUIDE RIGHT, $8.80, $4.92, $4.34; ANNIE REE, $9.90, $6.82; RACKETEER, $5.72.

GUIDE RIGHT never far from the pace, was sent after the leaders approaching the stretch turn and, finding an opening to the front rounding the bend, was never headed, winning easily. ANNIE REE raced with IN HASTE in the early stages and, seeking the best going in the stretch, held the others safe. RACKETEER broke slowly, but made up ground and was going well at the finish. PANCHO was tiring. IN HASTE lost all chance when her rider persisted in staying in the worst part of the track in the last quarter. GENGHIS KHAN retired early.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $2,000. The Lincolnshire Country Club Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:17. Off at 4:18. Winner, Shady Brook Farm's b. c. (3), by In Memoriam—Wistaria. Trained by J. H. Moody. Value to winner, $1,450; second, $325; third, $150; fourth, $75. Time, 0:24, 0:48 2-5, 1:15, 1:42, 1:48 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PITTSBURGHER, $7.40, $3.70, $2.68; SATIN SPAR, $3.14, $2.72; BROWN WISDOM, $3.28.

PITTSBURGHER, rated under steady restraint in the early stages, sought the best going in the stretch to take command and was a handy winner. SATIN SPAR outbroke the others, was taken back in the first quarter to permit BROWN WISDOM to set pace, then went to the front again after going half the distance, but raced through the poor going in stretch and could not resist winner. BROWN WISDOM could not keep up, but was going fairly well at finish. CHIEF JOHN made up some ground. SISTER ZOE seemed outclassed.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:46. Off at 4:46½. Winner, B. Johnson's b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—JAY WALKER, $14.82, $6.92, $5.06; INHERITOR, $8.30, $5.34; SUN MASK, $3.02.

JAY WALKER, outrun early came fast after leaving the back stretch and, catching the early leaders at midstretch, drew out to a long lead in the last furlong. INHERITOR was always close to the pace and easily bested SUN MASK. Latter set the pace, but tired badly in the stretch run. DURVA made up some ground. MAJEL was used up trying to catch SUN MASK in the early running and weakened after going half the distance.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-quarter miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:18. Off at 5:19½. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BRUSH, $11.92, $5.88, $5.28; HOMEWOOD, $8.18, $6.40; SPANFLOW, $5.68.

BRUSH, well rated in the early running, came wide to obtain the best going in the stretch and finishing fast, caught HOMEWOOD in the closing strides to win slowly drawing away. HOMEWOOD opened up a good lead in the early running and held on well. SPANFLOW was always close to the pace and was going gamely at the finish. WINNIE JO was forced into the deep going when SPANFLOW passed her on far turn and was never dangerous thereafter. The others were never serious contenders.

COMMERCE NINE NEAR SERIES TITLE

G.P.O.Beaten By Rallies, 5 to 4

Eldbrooke M. E. Has Chance to Tie With Series Leaders.

STANDING OF THE TEAMS.

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Commerce	4	1	.800
G. P. O.	3	2	.600
Eldbrooke	2	2	.500
Constructioneers	1	3	.167

A TIMELY single by Third Baseman Abe Povich in the seventh and final inning scored what proved the winning run for the Commerce nine yesterday in a 5-4 game with Government Printing Office, the result of which gave Commerce undisputed leadership in the Week Day League series and left little doubt that that club would eventually win the championship.

Until Povich rifled the ball to right field, with Taylor scoring from third base, Government Printing Office was very much in the running not only for the game decision but for the title as well. The standing before they clashed yesterday read three wins and one loss apiece. About 2,500 fans looked on.

The Eldbrooke M. E. nine stands in Commerce's path to the championship, but the Churchmen, who have won twice while losing twice, are not generally regarded capable of spilling the dope. Eldbrooke has a chance to tie for the title with games remaining with G. P. O. and Commerce scheduled, respectively, for next Monday and Tuesday.

Churchmen Have Chance To Tie Series.

Should the Churchmen capture both tilts, they will enjoy a two-way deadlock with Commerce for the bunting, but if they trip over G. P. O. they will pass completely from the picture. The Typos hopes depend on winning from Eldbrooke while the latter upset Commerce. In that eventuality, G. P. O. will secure only a tie, however.

Povich's game-deciding single came in the first half of the seventh with two out and Taylor on third as a result of his single and Singman's sacrifice bunt and Lewis' infield out. In the second half of the inning, G. P. O. scored one run to make the score 5-4 and might have produced another tally but for poor base running by Homan who was caught at third base after having driven Simon home with a two-bagger.

Riley started on the mound for Commerce but gave way to Taylor after the fourth when G. P. O. was leading, 3 to 2. The Typos hopped on Riley's offerings in the second inning for three runs, getting some help from an error by Gorman.

Commerce Cuts Down Lead.

Commerce cut down the Typos' lead in third, scoring a pair of runs on Singman's walk, Gichner's double and Shapiro's single, and then steamed ahead in the sixth with a two-run attack molded from Shapiro's second single, his theft, an error by Harding on Riley's roller, Riley's theft of third and a wild throw by Schneider, G. P. O. catcher.

Mitchell Rallies to Beat Yeomans by 3-6, 6-1, 8-6

THE prime question in local tennis was settled yesterday, in generally satisfactory manner, when Dooly Mitchell, who holds the Washington championship, triumphed over Eddie Yeomans, who holds the District championship, in the semi-final round of the Wardman Park Hotel tournament, 3—6, 6—1, 8—6, after trailing, 5—4 in the third set and evidently a certain loser at the hands of the steady-hitting Yeomans.

A brilliant driving attack gave Mitchell his victory. Striking out for the first time during the match, Mitchell began nicking the lines at the most critical portion of the match to overhaul Yeomans and pass him at the tape. His victory virtually assures him of the No. 1 ranking position in the District this year.

Eddie Jacobs, Baltimore's great netman, and seeded No. 1 in the draw, romped into the final round over the dogged resistance of Tom Mangan, veteran D. C. star, who, while he matched legitimate drives with the Baltimorean, managed to hold his own, but once the cocky invader began his drop-shotting and petty trickeries of the tennis court, he won almost as he pleased, 6—4, 6—2.

Neither Mitchell nor Yeomans hit those heights which a gallery of nearly 1,000 believed they would do in the match which carried the two-fold threat of producing a finalist and deciding a ranking player. Well-meaning linemen were guilty of several faults which, while they produced no radical changes in the score itself at the time of the error, did little to aid either the concentration or the disposition of the players. Mitchell played the entire match with a strange racquet borrowed from Eddie Jacobs.

No amount of topspin would hold his shots in at first, and how he managed to secure three games in the first set is testimony to the virtually even wildness of Yeomans. Getting his range in the second he rushed through with the loss of one game. His game wavered at the start of the third set, and after leading, 3—2, he saw Yeomans go ahead at 4—3 and 5—4.

Mitchell Takes Lead At 6 to 5.

Mitchell served out the tenth game at 50-30 and went to 6—5 in a game marked by careful hitting on each side. Yeomans salvaged the next game, but dropped his service on some poor overhead work and then saw Mitchell reach match point at 40-15. One of the best rallies of the match ensued, with Mitchell scoring an untouchable drop shot at the end.

G. U. Ends Work at Camp; American U. Gridmen Busy

Special to The Washington Post.

RHOBOTH BEACH, Del., Sept. 18.—A scrimmage lasting one hour and a half today marked the finish of the harder part of Georgetown's football training here and the Hilltoppers, led by Tommy Mills, will depart for Washington tomorrow at 1 p. m.

Though the play was intense, none of the athletes was injured, a fact that added to Mills' gratification. Heretofore both scrimmaging and lighter phases of training have developed numerous injuries.

Coincident to the arrival of three more players, bringing the squad personnel up to 21, Coach Walter Young sent his American University football candidates through a lively session of tackling yesterday on the Massachusetts avenue field. The players tackled one another instead of employing a dummy. Ted Lytel, center, and George Borsari, back, of the 1930 team, and Paul Hinkley, a freshman back, were the new arrivals.

Though handicapped by injuries, two stout-hearted Catholic University athletes steadfastly refuse to desert the daily football routine. Half Back Tom Campbell, who has suffered a broken finger on his left hand, remains in the running, as does Hugh (Bingo) Flynn, husky full back, who is nursing a strained side.

Yesterday's afternoon session was abbreviated considerably due to conditional examinations, which claimed a number of athletes. Little more than an hour was required to send some eighteen gridironers through a brisk workout.

Special to The Washington Post.

Camp Letts, Md., Sept. 18.—Tomorrow will be the big day of the preseason training camp work of the George Washington Colonials, for Coach Pixlee has scheduled a regulation intrasquad game in which there will be no interference by the coaches.

The conduct of the players in tomorrow's game will largely influence Coach Pixlee in determining the lineup of his team for the opening game with Shenandoah College a week hence.

GOLFER HITS WOODPECKER.

Paul C. Croarkin did not let the small matter of hitting a woodpecker on a spoon shot near the sixth hole at Rock Creek yesterday disturb his par golf. He was down in 5, despite the fact that contact with the unsuspecting bird caused his ball to drop yards short of the green.

He was playing with T. F. Callahan, L. C. Mitchell and Assistant Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Austin Harveycutter.

EL LARGARTO FIRST HEAT WINNER

Largarto with California a 100 yards farther in the rear, five yards ahead of Louisa which was 50 in front of the Delphine IV.

Hotsy Totsy's lead was increased to 50 yards on the second lap with El Largarto second, but the order of the others remained the same with Arctic Tern virtually out of it. Swinging around the third lap, Hotsy Totsy beat off a brief challenge by El Largarto to maintain its lead, but the Delphine IV had moved up to third place.

El Largarto Cuts Down Lead.

The El Largarto whittled away half of the Hotsy Totsy's lead on the fifth lap and the race had resolved itself into a duel between the two boats. Rounding the first bend on the fifth lap, the Hotsy Totsy was seen to leap high in the air and settle itself deep in the water for a moment. It had struck a floating log and Kleisrath slowed down perceptibly. It was here that the El Largarto passed the leader and continued on its way to victory virtually unchallenged while the Hotsy Totsy was laboring with its damaged bow. Kleisrath avoided swamping only by opening his throttle to the limit and keeping his craft's bow out of the water as much as possible. It was thus that he finished the race, his motors roaring as loudly as ever but his speed impeded whenever his craft nosed into the river.

Washington salvaged a portion of the honors in the day's racing when Walter Saunders, driving his Hacker, led the field in two races. He won the fourth event of the day, the Stock Runabouts, Class B, with ease, leading J. B. Corcoran, of Centerville, Md., in the Joe Anne, and came back in the final race, the secondary feature of the day which was titled the Washington Sweepstakes for boats of all sizes. Driving the Hacker over the five-mile course in 8:50, he led Gardner Orme in the Miss Lizzie by more than a minute.

Today, the second heat of the President's Cup race will be staged at 1:20 p. m. over the same 15-mile course with the third and final heat scheduled for 2:50. Despite its rather hollow victory due to the Hotsy Totsy being disabled, the El Largarto is believed to be the favorite in the final two heats, having threatened seriously the Hotsy Totsy's lead on the fourth lap yesterday. All of the boats in the President's Cup heat yesterday will compete today. Today's schedule:

CIVILIAN MEMBERS BEING SELECTED TO TRY STAPLES CASE

District Commissioners Will Not Announce Personnel Until Complete.

LAWYERS ARE SCANNING TESTIMONY TRANSCRIPT

Crosby Has Plan to Change System of Hearings on Formal Charges.

While disinterested attorneys were studying transcripts of the trial of Orville Staples, dismissed policeman whom the grand jury charges was "framed," the District Commissioners yesterday partially completed selection of the board of five civilians who will review the case.

Dr. Luther Reichelderfer, president of the Board of District Commissioners, said last night the Commissioners have made "a few selections," but declined to make them public until the group is complete. He said he did not consider "there is any great hurry" in appointing the board.

In the meantime Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, police commissioner, disclosed plans for what may develop into a trial board entirely different from the one that suspended Staples.

Would Use Civilians.

Under his plan the all-police board as now constituted would continue to function in all ordinary cases, while cases resulting from complaints made by citizens would be tried by a board comprising two civilians and one policeman.

The District Commissioners yesterday replied to inquiries directed by Senator Smith W. Brookhart, asking why Policeman Joseph H. Hunt, charged with collaborating in the "framing" of Staples, had not been suspended from the force, and seeking other data on the case.

Asked if the reply was satisfactory, Senator Brookhart said:

"It is so far. It looks like they have started out all right. But it's not the start I'm interested in, it's the finish."

Reticent Over Reply.

Senator Brookhart refused to disclose the nature of the response, as did Commissioner Reichelderfer, who volunteered the information that the reply was "quite commonplace."

He denied there is any truth in charges that the Commissioners are trying to avoid a Senate investigation of local police conditions.

Albert W. Jacobson, attorney for Hunt, last night said he had not been recently in touch with the commissioners; that he is concentrating on preparations for the District Supreme Court hearing on his petition to "expunge" the special grand jury report charging his client with "framing" Staples.

Hunt Trial Is Delayed.

Trial of Hunt on the grand jury charges by the civilian board of five now being selected, will await a report of another committee of five lawyers, who yesterday began examination of the transcript of Staples' earlier trial.

Through Henry P. Blair, its newly elected chairman, this lawyers' board yesterday asked the Commissioners for copies of the transcript.

"We feel that we should acquaint ourselves with the subject matter of the trial board before proceeding further," Mr. Blair said.

Discussing his proposed new trial board set-up, Commissioner Crosby yesterday said:

"I am not dissatisfied with the personnel of the present board, but I am most dissatisfied with the results they have been obtaining. Something is terribly wrong with the present system, and a remedy must be found."

Plans Important Changes.

The Commissioner said he had "several important changes under consideration," pointing out, however, that they must receive the sanction of the full board. He said no legislation would be required to create a new board of the kind he described.

Staples was dismissed from the police force after his case had been considered by an "all police" trial board three years ago. Recently the grand jury charged he was "framed" and that a vicious system of reprisals exists in the Police Department.

Gas Station Blast Injures Manager

Burns Are Believed Caused When Fumes Exploded in Office.

The condition of Leroy Bilbo, 26 years old, manager of a gas station at 625 T street northwest, who was severely burned early yesterday when gasoline fumes exploded in his office, was said to be "fairly good" last night at Garfield Hospital.

Bilbo, who lives at 409 Third street northwest, was burned on the arms and body. The explosion occurred when he went to the station shortly after 4 o'clock yesterday morning to extinguish an electric light which had been left burning all night. It is believed that a short circuit ignited the accumulated gasoline fumes.

Neighbors, attracted by the explosion, aided Bilbo in beating out the flames which enveloped his clothing and rushed him to the hospital. Little damage was done to the station.

Granite Blocks Planned For Memorial Bridge

Granite blocks will probably be used to pave the new Arlington Memorial Bridge across Boundary Channel, it was announced yesterday by Col. U. S. Grant 3d, executive director of the Arlington Memorial Bridge Commission, upon his return from New York, where he held a consultation with the architects of the bridge, McKim, Mead & White, and W. J. Douglas, consulting engineer.

Before closing a contract with the Union Paving Co., of Philadelphia, Pa., the lowest bidder for the work, Col. Grant will confer with the firm on designs for the pavement. Other details will be taken up with the Fine Arts Commission at its meeting next week and with the bridge commission, of which President Hoover is chairman.

AUTO-CRASH CHARGE QUASHED BY DEATH

William W. Jenkins Dies Before Warrant Can Be Served.

Death overtook William W. Jenkins, 43, last night before he could be served with a reckless driving warrant, sworn out after an accident a few hours earlier in which he received fatal injuries.

The crash occurred on East Rosemary street, Chevy Chase, when the car Jenkins was driving with one passenger struck a depression and overturned. Bethesda police believe the same car was responsible for another mishap a few minutes earlier.

According to Bethesda police, Jenkins was accompanied by Dr. Alfred Oberle, of Edgewood, Md., when the machine crashed while rounding a water tower. The former received a possible skull fracture, spinal injuries, several broken ribs and body bruises. His companion suffered only shock and bruises.

After receiving treatment at Georgetown Hospital, Dr. Oberle was taken to the Bethesda police station and identified as one of two men in an auto which had run into and badly damaged a rose hedge and fence belonging to Joshua Q. Shipley, 6611 East avenue, Chevy Chase.

Jenkins lived at 426 Fifth street northeast, according to police. He succumbed at Gallinger Hospital a half hour after he was transferred from Georgetown Hospital. The change was necessitated, it was said, because the patient was recalcitrant and disorderly.

Dr. Oberle, who has offices in Washington, was released after questioning.

Local Doctor Injured In Baltimore Collision

Witnesses said that Carl Fry, motorman, proceeded against a red light, causing the crash. He was charged with failure to give right of way.

Drunken Driving Charged.

Harry Orme, 29, 2520 L street northwest, was charged with reckless driving while drunk after the automobile he was operating collided with another car at Michigan avenue and Harewood road northeast, last night. The car into which he crashed was driven by George Burroughs, 4500 Thirteenth street northwest.

Brick-Wielding Robber Sought.

Police broadcast a lookout for the colored man who struck Oliver H. Parker, 25, with a brick last night as he was walking near Fourth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest. He is in Emergency Hospital with a possible skull fracture. Police rushed to the scene to find Parker unconscious after a holdup alarm had been sent in to headquarters.

Professors at G. W. U. Encouraged to Dream

College professors were told they must "dream dreams" and "not let the facts they gather along the wayside of study curb their imagination," in an address last night by Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington University, at a faculty meeting in Corcoran Hall.

"Imagination, color and the happiness of mental and spiritual freedom are essential to the lives of teachers," Dr. Marvin said, cautioning the teachers, however, "not to forget, in their ambition, to be great scholars."

He said there is no need today for systems of formal instruction but a demand, instead, for developing young men and women into citizens fitted to live in a democratic state. College work needs to be readjusted so that system may be made the handmaiden "in offering us opportunities for greater flexibility."

INSPECTOR TO CHECK CHARGES ACH FACES

Washington Policeman Held as Drunk and Disorderly in Atlantic City.

Inspector Albert J. Headley, of the Second Inspection District, was on his way to Atlantic City, N. J., early today to investigate charges that a Washington policeman had almost wrecked an Atlantic City police station before being placed under arrest there on charges of drunkenness and disorderly conduct. Before he left on an early morning train the police official said he could not comment on the case until he had talked with police officials in the New Jersey city.

The accused policeman, who was taken to a hospital after the melee, is Frank L. Ach, who is on leave from the Thirteenth Precinct. Ach is said to have gone to the Detective Bureau in Atlantic City to recover some stolen clothes. When he failed to find the clothing he is accused of starting a fight with a detective. Six other policemen went to the aid of the detective and in the row Ach was struck on the head with a blackjack.

Ach will be arraigned today in recorder's court. The case was to have been heard yesterday, but was adjourned. Reports from Atlantic City Thursday night said Ach was dressed in the uniform of a Washington motorcycle policeman at the time of the altercation. This was later declared to be an error.

YOM KIPPUR BEGINS TOMORROW EVENING

Education Group Will Make Appeal at Synagogues for Capital Schools.

Yom Kippur, probably the most sacred holiday of the Hebrew faith, will begin at sundown tomorrow, and services will be conducted in the orthodox and reformed synagogues. The holiday closes Monday at sundown, ending a 24-hour fast period.

Services at the Washington Hebrew Congregation reformed, will open at 8 p. m., and be resumed at 10:15 o'clock Monday morning.

Funds to coordinate activities of Washington schools giving courses in Hebrew and allied subjects will be sought tomorrow in a Yom Kippur appeal by the Jewish Education Association.

Local rabbis have pledged their support to the movement, and addresses will be delivered simultaneously in every synagogue in the city, Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, having been chosen as the appropriate occasion for the appeal.

This Jewish educational movement, the most far reaching ever undertaken by Washington Jewry, will be participated in by orthodox and reformed congregations alike.

The following addresses are scheduled for tomorrow:

Adas Israel, Rabbi Solomon Metz, President Joseph A. Wilner and Alex Koplin; Ohev Sholom, Rabbi J. T. Loeb, President Louis Rosenberg and Nathan Plotnik; Fourteenth and Euclid Streets Synagogue, Rabbi George Silverstone, President Samuel Rod and the Rev. M. Goldman; Fourteenth and Emerson Streets Synagogue, Rabbi A. Volkman, President Morris Wittlin, Louis Mirman and Harry Himmelfarb; Congregation for the Hebrew Home for the Aged, Bernard Danzansky, president and founder of the Jewish Education Association, Morris Garfinkle and Morris Maser; Georgetown Synagogue, Rabbi J. A. Dubrov, President A. Mostow and E. Stolar; Talmud Torah Congregation, Rabbi N. A. Hurwitz and President A. Berkman; Southeast Congregation, President B. Kotzin and Isaac Sandler; Har-Zion Congregation, Eighth and Shepherd streets northwest, Max Rhoade and President Julius Goode; special services of the Har-Zion at Masonic Temple, Morris Rabinowitz and S. Ross; Volinar Southwest Synagogue, Ben-Zion Emanuel, M. Silverman, S. Kessler; Northeast Synagogue, M. Bretler and H. Putrowsky.

War Mothers Buy Washington Home

House on New Hampshire Avenue to Be Haven and Headquarters.

A 20-room house at 1527 New Hampshire avenue northwest has been purchased by the American War Mothers, to be used as a national headquarters. The structure will also be used as a transient home for the mothers of veterans.

It was pointed out by officials of the organization that many members come here to visit sons in the four great Government hospitals, and that some of them are not well-to-do. It was felt that they should have a place where they can stay for a nominal charge. The building may also be made a haven for mothers who are without funds.

Officials said: "The pilgrimage to France of Gold Star Mothers during the past two years has revealed the poverty of many of these bereaved mothers. Installments of the insurance left by those killed in the war will cease in 1938. Many mothers will then be in want, who would have been well cared for had their sons lived."

Small Boy Hit by Auto Making New Left Turn

Forgetting that motorists now make a left turn differently, 6-year-old George Brewer was sharply reminded of his mistake last night when an auto struck him as he was crossing First street northeast at Rhode Island avenue. He received cuts on the head and brush burns. Clarence Berry, colored, 1205 U street northwest, was driving the machine.

George and his father, Joseph Brewer, were on their way to a picture show when the accident occurred. The latter said that his son was crossing on the green light but failed to watch out for a left turn. They live at 117 Quincy place northeast.

Chaplain Marries Couple Seeking Rush Ceremony

A chaplain from the Fort Myer military reservation saved the day for a pair of youthful Baltimoreans yesterday when he chanced into the clerk's office of the District Supreme Court just as the highly perplexed couple were wondering how they could get married.

The chaplain, Ralph Delbert, performed the ceremony that made John A. Walstrum and Lena Talkemeier man and wife. The perplexity was caused by the fact that the couple had only a short time to get married and get back to the Monumental City.

GAS COMPANY PROBE BEFORE COMMITTEE NEARING NEW PHASE

WITNESS FOR UTILITY ONCE HAD CITY POST

Hearing on Pressure Closes; Ownership Angle Will Come Up Wednesday.

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday finished its inquiry into the question of gas pressure and began preparations to take up the more important question of ownership of the Washington Gas Light Co., at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Albert E. Peirce, president of the Central Public Service Corporation, $400,000,000 utilities holding concern; William Wildes, executive vice president, and R. E. Gallagher, comptroller, of the same corporation, and F. S. Burroughs, of Harris, Forbes & Co., which engineered the purchase by the Peirce firm of the controlling interest in the local gas company, have been subpenaed to appear before the commission when it resumes the hearing and begins considering management and ownership.

Importance of the inquiry by the commission into the ownership is indicated by the fact that the La Follette antimerger act, governing District utilities, specifically forbids outside ownership. Application of this law, however, was avoided by formation of the Seaboard Investment Trust which acquired 84 per cent of the stock of the gas company here and successfully defended its acquisition in court, on the ground that the antimerger law did not specifically mention trusts and, inasmuch as the law provided penalties, it had to be construed literally.

Letter Mentions Engineer.

Announcement was made last March that the Central Public Service Corporation had acquired the local gas company, along with the Alexandria company, but when this acquisition was questioned the accuracy of the announcement was denied.

Interest in the appearance of Mr. Wildes was sharpened when a letter he wrote to George A. G. Wood, president of the gas company, was revealed yesterday, which stated that Mr. Wildes had offered "a more profitable" job to the then chief engineer of the Public Utilities Commission. The job was to be given at a future time and meanwhile, Wildes said, "he might be very helpful to you in your problems before the commission."

Bert H. Peck was chief engineer of the utilities commission when the letter was written in September, 1930, and subsequently, in March of this year, Mr. Peck was employed by the gas company as engineering assistant to the president of the company. Mr. Peck was introduced as a witness by the company in the course of presenting its arguments for higher authorized pressure limit, but fell into difficulties under questioning by William A. Roberts, assistant corporation counsel, and Richmond B. Keech, people's counsel, and was disqualified as an expert on gas pressures by Wilton J. Lambert, gas company attorney, who had put him on the witness stand.

Questioning Is Expected.

Though the Wildes letter to Mr. Wood about Mr. Peck has not been "introduced in evidence in the hearing so far, its possession by commission counsel is expected to result in questions about it being addressed to Mr. Wildes when he appears as a witness. The letter follows:

"Dear Mr. Wood: I have just learned that Mr. Bert H. Peck, whom I have known very well for many years, has recently been appointed chief engineer of the commission of the District of Columbia.

"Mr. Peck formerly operated the Southern Illinois Power & Light Co., in which my former associates were very much interested at one time.

"I have told Mr. Peck that I would look around to see if we had something in our organization that we could offer him which would be more profitable than his present connection, with the thought in mind that some time after we got our legislation through we might find a place for him and in the meantime he might be very helpful to you in your problems before the commission. I am sure that Mr. Peck will do everything that would be possible."

Extent of Control Shown.

It is presumed the reference to legislation meant the legislation then pending before Congress providing for a merger of the Georgetown and Washington Gas Light Cos., the most important phase of which was a removal of the existing restrictions on the capitalization of the companies.

Though dealing with gas pressure yesterday, the hearing was productive of some further evidence of the control maintained over the local company by the Chicago holding corporation. Byers McK. Bachman, chief accountant of the commission, took the witness chair for a brief while to identify papers which he had taken from the gas company files, under commission authority, prior to opening of the hearing. One of these showed that all but routine expenditures of the local company had to be approved by the parent organization in advance.

Tell of Pressure Tests.

Other witnesses yesterday included John R. McQueen, chief of the service department, and Donald P. Allen, chief of the distribution system of the company. Mr. McQueen told of a survey of gas pressure made at 72 points throughout the city. This showed that many points were getting gas under higher than authorized pressure.

Company witnesses, however, continued to stand by their declaration that consumers did not suffer from high pressures, which they could regulate themselves with the controls on their stoves. On the contrary, they said, consumers would be inconvenienced by an inadequate supply of gas. To keep pressures down to the six-inch maximum now required by the commission, they said, would require expenditure of an additional $500,000 in the immediate future and this necessarily would enter into the valuation which is the basis for fixing rates.

Russian Rites Conducted For 3 Victims of Gas Pact

Friends Arrange to Care for Two Surviving Perrenkos Children; Uncertainty of Life in Alien Land Blamed in Triple Tragedy.

Three victims of a homicide-suicide pact were accorded simple funeral rites last night at the undertaking parlors of J. William Lee, 332 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, under auspices of the Russian Orthodox Church.

Shortly before Alexander I. Krynitsky, closest friend of Serge Petrenko and his wife, Mary, who died with their son, Vadim, 14, in a gas-filled room of their home at 4824 Forty-first street northwest, revealed that the couple killed themselves and their son because they feared the uncertainty of life in an alien land.

The letter asked that Krynitsky and his wife care for the two children, Adriadna, 18, and Eugene, 17, who escaped the fate of their brother, Vadim, because they were spending a few days at the Krynitsky summer cottage at North Beach.

Petrenko directed that Krynitsky be given the keys to an iron box containing several hundred dollars. In addition to this sum, the house on Thirty-first street will be sold to care for the surviving children.

The Krynitskys are custodians of the old Russian embassy, 1125 Sixteenth street northwest, and there they will take the children of their old friend to live.

Petrenko said in the note that he had no fear of the "other world," but told of the anguish he felt in being obliged to take the life of his son. He could not leave him behind, however, to face the world, Petrenko's note said.

Only close friends attended the funeral services conducted by the Russian Church last night at 8:30 o'clock. Following the funeral services the bodies of the three were prepared for cremation. The ashes will be placed in Prospect Hill Cemetery.

COMDR. BLACKBURN DECLARED SUICIDE

Testimony Shows Plunge From Hospital Balcony Was Deliberate.

Commander John H. Blackburn, who plunged to his death from a third-floor balcony at Walter Reed Hospital, was a suicide, a coroner's jury decided yesterday.

Testimony of Maj. Cleve C. Odom, a member of the hospital staff, showed that the retired naval officer had been in an automobile accident in California, in which his jaw was seriously injured. A recent operation to correct the trouble proved unsuccessful, the jury was told, and Commander Blackburn had been despondent since that time.

Maj. Odom said that Commander Blackburn was admitted to the hospital March 17 and was transferred to the mental ward Wednesday, the day before his death.

Asked to Go to Balcony.

One witness, Private Paul Clark, assigned to guard the patient, testified that Commander Blackburn fell from the balcony when he leaned too far over the rail. This testimony was contradicted by Private Howard Johnson, colored, who declared that he had seen Commander Blackburn jump over the railing.

Clark said he had taken the patient to the dental clinic, and after returning the naval officer had asked permission to go to the balcony and rinse his mouth.

"He had a solution of some kind in a paper cup," Clark declared, "and I saw him rinse his mouth several times, each time leaning over the rail. Then he seemed to lean too far over and suddenly plunged downward."

Blame Put on Private.

He said he had not been told to remain with Commander Blackburn constantly, but this testimony was refuted by Detective Sergt. Dennis J. Murphy, who said the soldier had been told the man had a "suicidal tendency" and had been given orders to watch him carefully.

Funeral arrangements for Commander Blackburn will not be made until word is received from his son, John H. Blackburn, jr., who is at the family home in Burlingame, Calif.

Commander Blackburn was born in Lafayette, Ind., October 25, 1880. He was executive officer of the U. S. S. Leviathan when it was used in transport service during the World War. He was transferred to the retired list June 30, 1930.

FREEDOM IS SOUGHT BY MAN HELD INSANE

Paul DuV. Barry, Ordered to St. Elizabeths 8 Years Ago, Seeks Writ.

After eight years in Howard Hall, the ward for the criminally insane at St. Elizabeths Hospital, Paul DuVernal Barry, who, in 1923 was acquitted on a charge of first degree murder on the grounds of insanity, yesterday asked the District Supreme Court to order his release from the hospital.

Barry, through Attorney Foster Wood, claims that he has recovered his sanity, but the Government's alienists refuse to release him.

The release action came up through a writ of habeas corpus filed by Barry. He will now go before a lunacy jury and that body will pass upon the question of his sanity. Chief Justice A. A. Wheat, who received the petition, did not set a date for the hearing.

Barry, the son of a wealthy laundry owner here, was connected with the shooting of a motorman-conductor on a one-man street car at North Capitol street and Michigan avenue. He was apprehended near the fashionable Trinity College in Brookland, and on the insanity plea was sent to the asylum.

Because of the fact that the jury that found him of unsound mind, heard all the evidence in the case, Barry will not be tried on the charge of murder. The jury was allowed to hear both the insanity plea and the Government's proof at the same time, thus making a second trial double jeopardy.

William Kellum, of Dawsonville, Md., former Washington policeman, was locked up by Montgomery County policemen at the Rockville jail late yesterday on charges of driving while drunk.

According to police, Kellum afterward struck a prisoner who brushed up against him in the Rockville jail, knocking the man down.

PITTS LOSES GRASP ON SMITH COMPANY AT BOARD ELECTION

Hostile Directorate Named at Wilmington Meeting to Manage Firm.

OUSTED HEAD'S SLATE LOSES BY LARGE VOTE

Officers Will Be Chosen at Session Next Monday in New York City.

Control of the F. H. Smith Co., maintained by its former board chairman, G. Bryan Pitts, despite his imprisonment here on embezzlement charges, was wrested from him yesterday when a hostile board of directors was named at a special election in Wilmington, Del.

Results of the ballot, which was cast four days ago, became known yesterday, after a tedious process of checking names of voters with stockholders on the company's books. The ticket sponsored by the present management of the company was outvoted by a majority of 10,000 ballots.

Carried Out Court Order.

The election, conducted under the supervision of Special Master Charles C. Keedy, was ordered by the chancery court of Wilmington last week after it canceled 200,000 shares of common stock of the company, claiming it was issued to officers without valid consideration.

Rush L. Holland, Washington lawyer, and an Assistant Attorney General in the Harding and Coolidge administrations, is a member of the newly elected board. Others named were Harry M. Blair, William P. Edwards, George W. Lawrence, jr., and Clarence Waldman, all of New York; James Lichtenberger, of Philadelphia, and Robert G. Merritt, of Baltimore.

The successful ticket was backed by a protective committee of preferred noteholders. It was said the committee's slate received 25,000 votes, representing half of $7,000,000 worth of outstanding preferred stock.

Will Replace Management.

The board will meet in New York Monday to elect officers to replace the present management, sponsored by Pitts, who is under a 14-year sentence pending his appeal from conviction on embezzlement charges.

The present officers include Thomas L. Weed, allegedly made president of the company by Pitts when Samuel J. Henry resigned.

The F. H. Smith Co. at one time boasted assets totaling $50,000,000. Recently it offered evidence of assets in excess of $4,000,000 in opposing action to force it into receivership.

Youth Seized in Holdup Identified in Purse Case

Harry B. Hazel, one of two youths arrested in connection with a Montgomery County holdup early Thursday, was identified last night, according to police, as the young man who snatched a woman's purse on August 27 and escaped in an auto. He was charged with robbery. The victim of the purse snatching was Nellie Skinner, 1248 Euclid street northwest. She was robbed near Fifth street and Concord avenue.

Hazel and Philip Baynard were arrested after two strangers, whom they took for a ride, reported that they were held up near English Village, Md., and robbed of a $45 wrist watch. Baynard is being held for Maryland authorities. He lives at 5528 Thirteenth street, Hazel at 3513 Thirteenth street.

Various Charges Faced By Alleged Wife-Beater

Two assault charges and another accusing him of being drunk and disorderly were placed against Roger Procter yesterday after he allegedly beat his wife and then attempted to resist arrest. The arrest was made by Policeman H. F. Skinner after Procter's small daughter, Betty, ran to him in the street and cried that her father was beating her mother in their home at 124 Maryland avenue northeast.

Slipping out of the door as Skinner arrived, Procter ran, but was caught about a mile away and allegedly tried to resist the policeman, thereby suffering bruises for which he was treated at Casualty Hospital.

Failure to Move Track Discussed

Order Not Acted On for Anacostia Line Discarded Five Years.

Failure of the Washington Railway & Electric Co., to remove its unused tracks on Portland street in Anacostia, extending to the old steel plant at Giesboro Point, has been the subject of several conferences since Thursday, between directors of the company, Corporation Counsel Bride and Commissioner Reichelderfer.

The traction company was given 60 days in which to take up its tracks, but on Thursday when the time expired, had failed to comply with the order. Corporation Counsel Bride declared that Police Court action may be necessary to compel the removal of the tracks.

For more than five years the controversy had waged over the abandoned tracks. The land is needed by the War Department as a site for the Army Airport. The refusal of the District government to make compensation for the tracks has caused the company to delay proceedings.

Blazing Pan of Grease Empties Restaurant

Fire last night which was thought to have started from an overflowed grease pan, resulted in about $200 damage to the kitchen of the Atlantic Lunch at 625 Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

Several patrons who were eating left the establishment hurriedly when the large pot of grease burst into flame. Of the half dozen people who dashed out of the restaurant, only one stopped long enough to pay his check. No one was hurt.
